URGES BOARD TO ADMINISTER T-B PROGRAM

Richland Medical Committee Gives Commissioners Plan for Treating Cases.

RECOMMEND DIRECTOR

Administrator, Advisory Board Suggested; County Agrees to Carry Out Proposals.

The first step was taken today to set up the county's anti-tuberculosis program, financed from a half mill tax levy voted last November.

Appointment of a county medical director and an executive board to administer the county program, and the establishment of a sinking fund for a permanent program were the major recommendations made today to county commissioners by a committee representing the Richland County Medical Society.

Will Follow Plan.

Conferring at the courthouse, the group outlined its recommendations to commissioners.

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of commissioners, said the medical society's recommendations would be followed in setting up the new program, but action on the project would be deferred until next week due to the illness of Ray Hout, one of the commissioners.

The special committee will include members from the Christmas health seal and Richland County Tuberculosis association, county medical society, health department, P. T. A. organizations, and the county grange.

One To Five-Year Terms.

Members will serve terms ranging from one to five years, with one to be appointed annually.

The medical society committee asked that it be permitted to recommend the director who will receive a salary of $3,000 a year.

Republicans Get Jobs But Dems Do The Snow Clearing

Nine Republicans were hired two days ago to replace 13 Democrats in the maintenance division of the state highway department in Richland county, but they didn't take over until today, after the snow had been cleared from county highways.

Arthur Fletcher, county maintenance superintendent, said the operation of snow plows and sweepers was too dangerous for inexperienced workers and that he had held the old force on the job until last night while the new workers learn their jobs.

Murray D. Shafer, Ashland division engineer, today announced the resignation of C. W. Kimerline, acting Crawford county resident engineer Kimerline was placed in charge of the office after Engineer R. D. Reiff's job was abolished.

Workers dismissed in Richland county, as announced today by Shaffer, were:

V. E. Logan, Mike Zgala, Ira Matthews, Richard Bewley, Frend Snyder, Levi Briggle, Glenn Cotter, Harry France, Charles Jarrett, Charles Williams, Wilbur Grumbling, John Ford, and Peter Deschner.

New workers employed to replace them are Eugene Henney, Frank Kollen, Robert Pittenger, Oscar Parsons, Robert Black, Ralph Herr, Ted Elder, Russell Moser, and Carl Bush.

UCC 'Ripper' Up for Final Vote Tonight

House Gets Measure to Oust Democrats From Job Law Board.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—The first major piece of the Bricker administration's "Ripper" program was subjected today to its second and most important test in the Ohio legislature.

A senate-approved bill to abolish the unemployment compensation commission and place an administration appointed by Gov. John W. Bricker at the head of the huge system embracing 3,000 employes was brought up for a vote in the house of representatives.

Despite the opposition of Democrats and of spokesmen for organized labor, who called the measure a "patronage grab," the Republican leadership predicted its passage.

Even Sen. William Boyd (D-Cuyahoga), co-author of the unemployment insurance law and opponent of the proposed reorganization, said, "I understand they (the Republicans) have got the votes."

Emergency Phase Menaced.

However, a serious defection in the Republican ranks, combined with the solid opposition of 36 Democratic representatives, would cripple the administration's hopes of putting the bill through as an emergency, designed to make it effective upon its signature by the governor.

The Republicans number 100, but one of them has been absent. Passage of the bill as an emergency requires 91 votes, thus giving the Republicans a margin of nine cohorts.

The vote affords labor another opportunity to check up on its following in the legislature. When the senate passed the bill, all the 26 Republicans present voted for it; the Democratic minority of eight, against it.

Besides an administrator at $7,500 a year, the bill would create a board of review, its members paid $6,000 a year, and an advisory council of seven members.

Labor objects particularly to a clause which would allow employers to appeal to the board from claims allowed by the administrator.

Ohio State Federation of Labor headquarters said this provision might cause "unnecessary delay in the payment of benefits to thousands of unemployed workers."

SHUTS SCHOOLS

Bellville Officials Act to Curb Spread of Colds.

With more than 100 pupils in the Bellville schools ill with the grippe and severe colds, the schools were closed today for the rest of the week by the board of education.

Supt. W. B. Edgerley said the closing order would force cancellation of the basketball game with Lexington which had been scheduled for Bellville Friday night.

"Our percentage of absences wasn't so high, but a number of pupils were in school who should have been at home to prevent a spread of the epidemic," Edgerley said.

The 100 absent pupils yesterday represented about one-fifth of the total enrollment in the schools, he said. Shiloh and Plymouth schools were recently closed due to cold and flu outbreaks.

Refuse to Believe That Woerth Killed Two, Self

Insist "Unusually Tender-Hearted" Man Couldn't Have Done It—Cite Strange Circumstances.

By JANE WILLIAMS

Brothers and sisters of John M. Woerth refused to believe today that their brother had killed his wife and daughter and then taken his own life, despite the verdict of Coroner Hugh Winbigler and Police Chief Meade K. Bates.

For them the tragedy is still shrouded in mystery; a mystery which presented three puzzling questions.

Who stole the keys to the Woerth home on Saturday night preceding the tragedy and which brought police officers to the home in answer to a call?

Why was the front door open and the back door unlocked when it was a custom of the family to keep the door locked?

Why would John Woerth, who was unable to kill a chicken because it sickened him, use a hammer and knife to do away with his family when other less horrible means were available?

Unusually Tenderhearted.

These were questions that kept tormenting the Woerth family today. The keys to the house as well as to the Woerth car were stolen from the car in the garage Saturday evening and the car ransacked. When neighbors first went to the Woerth home early Wednesday evening, they found the front door ajar a few inches, while members of the family who came in

LEAVES TONIGHT

Man-of-War to Take Roosevelt to Caribbean Waters.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Roosevelt cleared up pressing government business today so that he could spend the next two weeks on a man-of-war in the Caribbean.

Leaving behind a balky congress, he will depart tonight by special train for Key West, Fla., where he will board the 9,050-ton cruiser Houston Saturday to witness part of the fleet maneuvers.

The voyage was planned several weeks ago with a double purpose to give the naval-minded president a glimpse of the greatest armada ever to assemble in the Atlantic for mimic battle and an opportunity to rest from congressional problems.

LEBANON—(AP)—Coroner H. M. Williams today gave a verdict of suicide in the death of A. H. Turner, 50, feed and coal store owner, whose body was found in the Little Miami river, held by a rope tied to a tree near the bank.

Americans, Stranded In Face Of Jap Attack, Get Warning

(By Associated Press)

SHANGHAI—After many days of silence, 12 Americans and 53 other foreigners stranded on a mountain in central China in the path of an imminent Japanese onslaught made contact today with the outside world.

They acknowledged receipt of radio broadcasts containing a Japanese warning to leave their isolated haven in a summer resort at Kuling, on Lushan mountain, southeast of Hankow.

The message said some foreigners wished to leave but did not give their names or number.

Officers of the Chinese force holding lines on the slopes of Lushan, mountain on which Kuling is perched, agreed to permit one foreigner to ascend the tortuous trail to the resort to arrange the evacuation. It is against this Chinese force that the Japanese have announced they would launch an attack with all available weapons, including aircraft, probably Feb. 20.

Japanese authorities served notice today that they intended to land troops at Haimen, 200 miles down the coast from Shanghai, late tomorrow in a new move to tighten the China coast blockade.

They warned all foreign shipping to stand clear of a 30-mile zone in Taichow bay, where the port is located.

9 BELOW HERE IN 'SURPRISE' FRIGID BLAST

Mercury Sets 3-Year Mark in Mansfield; Bellville Has Unofficial 16 Below.

PROMISES QUICK RELIEF

Weatherman Says Mercury Will Climb and It Might Be Raining Friday Night.

With an official reading of nine degrees below zero, Mansfield last night had the coldest weather in more than three years and one of the lowest temperatures in Ohio.

Striking unexpectedly, the cold wave sent temperatures from above freezing to zero within a few hours last night when skies cleared following a light snow. The cold and accompanying storms claimed at least 13 lives in the nation.

Bellville Shivers.

An unofficial reading of 16 below zero was reported early today at Bellville, and Salem, in northeastern Ohio, reported an unofficial 17 below zero. East Canton had 10 below. It was eight above in Cleveland and nine above at Columbus.

Virtually every section of the state shivered in the coldest weather of the winter, but the weatherman predicted a sharp rise in the mercury by tonight and probably rain or snow by Friday night.

Mansfield's low mark, recorded sometime after midnight, was the coldest weather the city has had since Jan. 23, 1936, when the mercury skidded to 17 below. The lowest last year was four below and the previous low this winter was three above in January. The mercury had climbed to three below at 6 a. m. and 17 above at noon.

Gale Lashes East.

A freak gale that reached a velocity of 71 miles an hour in sections of New England carried the frigid blasts to the eastern seaboard with almost unprecedented swiftness.

A 65-mile-an-hour rain squall tumbled temperatures in New York City from 62 degrees, highest ever recorded for the date, to below freezing. In the lower Ohio valley fears of a recurrence of last week's flood arose when heavy rains sent tributaries of the Ohio river out of their banks.

3 An arrangement to put certain facilities of the treasury's $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund at the disposal of Brazil in stabilizing its currency.

4. Technical assistance from United States experts to Brazil in setting up a central banking system.

Chief, Coroner Give Verdict of Murder, Suicide

Insurance Agent, Wife And Daughter Found In Home With Throats Cut, Had Been Dead 24 Hours; Women Struck On Head With Hammer.

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

A combination of financial worries and ill health today had wiped out an entire family in one of the most appalling tragedies Mansfield has experienced in years.

Termed a double murder and suicide by Richland County Coroner Hugh C. Winbigler, the three victims, their throats slashed with a butcher knife, were found last evening after they had been dead for more than 24 hours.

They are:

John M. Woerth, 60, of 39 Lexington avenue, an insurance agent and former Richland county recorder.

Grace Woerth, 64, his wife.

Miss Loretta Woerth, 27, their daughter.

The bodies of Woerth and his wife, fully clothed, were discovered lying in a pool of blood on the basement floor of their home. The daughter, attired in light cotton pajamas, was found dead in bed in an upstairs room.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said that Woerth apparently killed his daughter by striking her with a hammer and then slashed her throat. He used the same method to slay his wife and then ended his own life with the butcher knife.

Coroner Winbigler today returned a verdict of double murder and suicide.

"There is no need for further investigation," Dr. Winbigler said. "I am of the same opinion as Chief Bates."

Both women had fractured skulls, the coroner said, suffered from blows from a hammer which had been sufficient to kill them.

Bates placed the approximate time of the slaying at "sometime before dusk Tuesday."

Wife Had Been Ironing.

He said that he was of opinion that it actually happened either in the late morning or early afternoon because a partly finished garment on an ironing board set up in the kitchen indicated that Mrs. Woerth had been engaged in ironing the family wash just prior to her murder.

He said he believed that while she was in the basement to fire the furnace, Woerth went upstairs with his weapons and killed his daughter, later going to the cellar where he met his wife as she left the furnace room.

Woerth had been worried over his financial affairs and health, the chief reported. He said he had been told by friends and relatives that both Woerth and his attractive daughter had been ailing for the past year. Mrs. Woerth, it was learned, also had been in poor health.

The bodies were discovered shortly after 5 p. m. yesterday by police who were called by two neighbors, W. F. Baer and W. G. Herrold, who accompanied Miss Adelaide Woerth to the upstairs bedroom where they found the body of the girl in her bed.

Slain As She Sleeps.

Detective Lee J. Remy said that Miss Woerth apparently was murdered while she slept and "never knew what happened." He said she had been suffering from a tubercular ailment of the knee and last November had resigned her position at the Mansfield Telephone company because of her health.

Although relatives today clung to the theory that a container of keys stolen from Woerth's automobile last Saturday had some connection with the slayings, Chief Bates said that he did not attach any importance to the theft.

He explained that Woerth last Sunday reported that his garage

Neighbors Stunned by Tragedy; 'Anyone But John,' They Say

By VIRGIL A. STANFIELD

Family groups huddled in the living rooms of homes in the vicinity of 39 Lexington avenue until late last night. Some of them were quiet, others talked excitedly of the tragedy that had stunned their neighborhood.

But all of them repeated the same thought—"It could have been anybody but John Woerth."

The neighbors who had known the Woerth family and visited with the victims of the tragedy for years interpreted the evening's events as they had heard them, but they couldn't picture the calm, kindly John Woerth as a man who would turn on his family.

"Why, he loved his wife and daughter as few fathers do," said William J. Wampfler who lives only a few feet south of the Woerth residence.

"He bore his troubles as long as he could and something snapped in his brain," was Mrs. Wampfler's analysis.

The Wampflers have lived next door to the Woerths for more than a year, and Mrs. Woerth

Act of 'Good Neighbor' Led To Discovery of Deaths

While W. F. Baer, 76-year-old retired school janitor, calmly shoveled the unbroken snow from the walk leading to the Woerth home about 5 p. m. yesterday, there was no thought in his mind of the gruesome discovery that was about to be made in the dark house.

"I knew John (Mr. Woerth) had been sick so I thought I'd clean off the walk for him and then go in and see how he was," the elderly man said.

It was the "good neighbor" act that led to the finding of the bodies of the murder and suicide victims by Miss Adelaide Woerth, 286½ South Diamond street, sister of Mr. Woerth. Mr. Baer lives directly across the street from the Woerth residence.

"Of course I was a little puzzled about the Monday and Tuesday News-Journals on the front porch and the dark house, but it wasn't until I put my head in the front door and called that I began to think something awful could have happened," Mr. Baer related.

"The front door was open enough for me to get my hand in," he said, "but it locked from the inside when I came out after calling from the living room," he said.

"I went back home to get Mrs. Baer to come over with me, but she said she didn't like to go into

ENDS REVIEW SERIES FOR CHURCH GROUP

Mrs. W. E. Benninghoff, of Cleveland, Talks on "Benjamin Franklin"; Plans to Return To Mansfield In April.

FOR her final book review in the series of three presented in Mansfield this winter, Mrs. W. E. Benninghoff, Cleveland, reviewed "Benjamin Franklin," by Carl VanDoren in the auditorium of the First Congregational church yesterday. She was presented to an audience of several hundred women by Miss Helen Hurst, president of the Women's association which has sponsored Mrs. Benninghoff's appearance here.

It was announced that Mrs. Benninghoff will return to Mansfield April 25 for an evening program. The book to be reviewed has not been selected, but will be chosen from suggestions yesterday's audience submits to Miss Hurst.

Mrs. Benninghoff drew a somewhat different picture of Franklin in her review from the one commonly accepted by most Americans. She described his inventive genius, told of his early experiences, and explained in detail his diplomatic and political experiences in the period just preceding the Revolutionary war.

Mrs. Benninghoff told of the writer, statesman, and inventor in colorful accents, describing his home and family life, his wide influence, his modern ideas and his almost miraculous ability to attract people to him.

Arrangements for the series of three reviews were made by a committee of women of the association headed by Mrs. Paul W. Williams. Mrs. John W. Graham, chairman of the ways and means committee, assisted.

Tygers Play Clean Basketball, Commit Fewer Fouls Than Opponents and Win Ball Games; Feller to Get Call In Night Tilts.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

APPARENTLY, it is not necessary to employ rough tactics to win basketball games. The Tygers of Mansfield high school have probably the lowest personal foul average of any team in Ohio, and they have been winning more than their share of games.

In the 13 games played to date, Coach Russ Murphy's proteges have committed only 134 fouls as compared to 173 for their opponents. This gives the Tygers a remarkable average of only 10 fouls per game.

Mansfield struck a new low in personals against Akron West when it was called only four times for infractions. The Tygers committed only five personals in the first Ashland game.

Murphy's men have committed more fouls than their opponents in only one game. This happened against New Philadelphia when they were charged with 12 personals, two more than the Quakers. The highest number of personals called against the Tygers was in the rough Sandusky tilt when 16 were detected.

Only seven times have Tygers been removed from games because of four personals. Opponents suffered the loss of players 10 times.

AVERAGE BOWLING SCORE IN THE U. S. A. IS 162.14 PINS. MR. BOWLER, rolling in regular league play through the United States, has an average of 162.14 pins. This figure, perhaps the most accurate one computed, was released today after officials of a national sweepstakes averaged the scores of literally thousands of bowlers in all parts of the country now competing for $50,000 in awards. The average represents a cross section of the play of Class A, Class B and Class C bowlers, it was explained. The average scores of all five-man teams, units competing in the sweepstakes, is 810.713 pins. Further breakdown of the averages reveals that Class A bowlers can be counted on to roll an average of 188.71 pins, Class B keglers have an average of 170.49 and Class C bowlers, representing the most part beginners, have an average of 150.92.

Shiloh-Plymouth Cage Tilt To Be Played After Tourney

Game Called Off Last Week to Decide League Title; County Loop Teams Close Season Friday.

THE Twin-Valley league title will not be determined until after the completion of the Richland county basketball tournament, E. J. Joseph of Shiloh high school announced today.

Shiloh and Plymouth, which are tied for first place in the league, were scheduled to tangle last week, but the game was postponed because of the cold and grippe outbreaks at these two schools.

Officials of the schools have decided to play this all-important game as soon as possible after the tournament.

If Shiloh and Plymouth win their games Friday night, the two clubs will carry the tie into the postponed contest.

Shiloh is host to Greenwich, Friday, while Plymouth invades New Haven.

The county league schedule will be concluded Friday night with only a couple of games having any important bearing on a position. The title was cinched by Madison last week.

The headline game involves a meeting at Madison between the Rams and Butler, which holds second place.

Ontario goes to Union and Lexington invades Bellville for the other Friday night tussles.

Shelby, the county's lone representative in the N. C. O. conference, is host to Marion. Friday night, while Ashland goes to Galion and Mt. Vernon to Bucyrus.

Union Cubs Pull Another Major Upset.

THE lowly Union high school Indians pulled off another major upset in the Richland county league race last night when they defeated Lucas, 48 to 39, on the Union hardwood.

Coach James Hunter's Indians, who recently scored an unexpected triumph over Butler, knocked the Cubs out of a tie for second place with the Bulldogs.

The only chance Lucas now has of finishing in a tie for the runner-up position is if Madison outpoints Butler in their meeting on the Rams' court Friday night.

Big first and third periods enabled Union to register its fourth victory in 11 games. The Indians took a 17 to 7 lead in the opening frame, held a 25 to 16 advantage at the half and remained in front by a 39 to 22 margin as play reached the fourth quarter.

Union was unable to completely stop Tom Greulich and Bob Crawford, who scored 16 to 15 points, respectively, but held the other Lucas cagers in tow.

Tolles turned in his greatest performance of the season as he caged 11 baskets and three free throws for 25 points. Swisher contributed 12 points.

The preliminary game was taken by Lucas, 21 to 17.

THE major upset of the Class A Church league season was turned in last night by the First Episcopal cagers at the Y.M.C.A.

Without a victory in the second half, Episcopal handed Temple Emanuel a 20 to 18 setback to throw the tight race into a four-way tie for the leadership.

To turn back the Temple courtiers, the Episcopal basketeers were forced to really in the final period. Episcopal trailed 14 to 11 at the end of the third quarter, and tallied nine points to Temple's four in the final frame to annex the unexpected triumph.

Park Avenue Baptist, First Lutheran and Mayflower accounted for the other triumphs last night to tie Temple for first place.

Denzel, with 10 points, led the Baptists in a fourth-period rally to defeat St. John's, 36 to 35. The losers were led by Augustine, 13, and Keseros, 11.

Huffman and Martin paced the Lutherans to a 31 to 15 triumph over First M. E., and Mayflower won over Central M. E., 28 to 17. The Mayflower-Central M. E. box score was not turned in.

VINES REDUCES LEAD

SAN FRANCISCO — (INS) — Ellsworth Vines, 27-year-old pro master, last night outslugged red-thatched J. Donald Budge of Oakland, the amateur world's gift to tennis professionalism, in two abrupt sets, by scores of 7-5, 6-4. The match brought the national tour score to Budge 17, Vines 11.

FIRESTONES STOPPED

AKRON — (INS) — The winning streak of the Akron Firestones in the National Professional Basketball league was a thing of the past today after the Goodyears took them 40 to 37. The Firestones had won 17 in a row up to last night.

Ex-Mansfield Boy to Return To Home Town Mat This Week

JACK ZARNAS, a former Mansfield boy who achieved gridiron fame at Wittenberg college, will return to the home town mat Friday night when the Quality club stages its weekly wrestling show at the Armory.

Zarnas, who now hails from Youngstown, made his first appearance at the Armory a month ago when he won a decision from Bill Brooks of Boston.

The ex-Mansfielder, who has made quite a reputation for himself on the mat since his school days, will meet Cleve Welch of Cleveland in the semi-final match on Friday's card, which will be headed by a match between Frank Sexton, Ohio heavyweight champion, and "Sailor" Bill Curly of Glouster, Mass.

Promoter Tim Nolan also announced the opening match today. It will pit the rough but colorful Pasha Beiram Bey of Turkey against "Gorilla" Poggi of Argentina.

Mark Breaker

Stepping over the two-thirds mile distance in 2:39, John Borican of the Shore A. C., Elberon, N. J., set a new world record in Madison Square Garden, cutting 4.6 seconds off the old mark which has stood for 16 years.

Schmidt finished in 10th place with a 91 score, while Burdett, with a 64 score, did not place.

The tournament prize money in the men's division was distributed as follows: Ralph Schaffer $25; Ed Norris, $6.08; William Hahne, $5.16; Charles Brissel, $4.25; Charles Berry, $4.25; Buel Adams, $3.03; Harold Moore, $3.03; Robert Grabosky, $2.12; Horace Francis, $1.53; John Schmidt, $1.00.

Young Star and Partner Spill 1373 Sticks in City Doubles League.

CLARENCE (SONNY) MEDER threatened the season's individual bowling record of 760 held by Christ Herrick as he celebrated his biggest night of the current campaign at his dad's alleys last night.

The youthful sharpshooter crashed out a sensational 749 series to establish a new season mark in the City Class A Doubles league. He put together games of 236, 258 and 255 for the big total.

Win Three Games.

Meder and his partner, Duke Weber, who collected 624 pins, turned out scores of 463, 428 and 482 for a 1373 count, which was good for a clean sweep over Carl Heilman and Fred McKinley.

Sonny, who sports a 215 average in the tandem league, collected a six-bagger in each of his first two games. After opening his last game with a spare, he collected five strikes in a row. A "chop" stopped this string, but he came right back with another "five-bagger" to climax his games.

Jimmy Smith walloped the uprights for a spectacular 652 total. Sporting a string of 202, 181 and 269, Smith and his mate, Dale Cleckner, whipped up a 1244, which produced three victories at the expense of Winnie Cleckner and Ed Funston.

Eight In a Row.

Smoth got eight strikes in a row in his 269 game after starting out with a strike and spare.

In the other match, Joe Cheney, featuring a 242, and Cecil Burdett took two decisions from Neil Swank and Jack Applan.

Cleveland's Jeff Heath Joins List of Holdouts.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — The Cleveland Indians' rookie batting sensation, 23-year-old Geoffrey (Jeff) Heath, today became No. 6 on the tribal list of holdouts.

The outfielder, who batted .343 last season to finish second to league-leading Jimmy Foxx, wired a Cleveland sports writer from his Seattle home that the terms of the contract offered him are "very unsatisfactory." Heath joins Mel Harder, Hal Trosky, Lyn Lary, Frankie Pytlak and Willis Hudlin in the holdout camp.

'The Swing's the Thing In Golf,' Says Sammy.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(AP)—Samuel Jackson Snead, 25, a ranking money winner in the royal and ancient game of golf, gripped one of his war clubs with big, steady hands and spoke of "jitterbugs."

"You can't dilly-dally around in this game and expect to get anywhere," said the trim athlete from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. "You can't let your nerves get the best of you. It's the hands and feet that count in golf but in a different sense than they're used for the 'big apple'."

"The thing to do in this game," suggested Sammy, "is to get a good grip on your club, step up to a stance and smack that apple. The swing's the thing and don't let anybody tell you otherwise."

Plans are practically completed for the staging of the annual City Senior Table Tennis tournament which will be held at the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday evening, March 2, according to an announcement made today by Dr. Dwight Weir, chairman of the Table Tennis committee.

The tournament is open to any individual in the city regardless of age and a record entry is expected according to Weir. The tournament will be staged the same as last year with all of the matches being played on the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium floor with five tables in play.

The Mansfield Barons, formerly known as the Miller Dairys, took both ends of a double-header with the Tiro Ex-Hys at Tiro last night. With Heiser setting the pace with 10 points, the Barons whipped the Tiro five, 27 to 17, in the first game, and Bill Moritz tallied 11 points to lead the victory

THEATERS

THERE'LL be a howl in Hollywood if the acting honors for 1938 should be awarded by the academy to Wendy Hiller for her work in "Pygmalion." She is an English actress, it is an English-made film, and it has not been very widely distributed in America. Miss Hiller, however, was one of the candidates nominated for the academy award, as was Leslie Howard, who played opposite her in that film. No matter how good a foreign film may be there is a widespread feeling that the academy awards should be handed out on American pictures, since the domestic product admittedly is a long way ahead of foreign picures as a whole.

Ice Hockey In Film.

"The Duke of West Point" brings a new sports to the films which is even more exciting than football as depicted by the celluloiid strips. It is ice hockey and the climax is a game between West Point cadets and the Royal Military Academy of Canada, Romance which involves Joan Fontaine, Alan Curtis, Tom Brown, Louis Hayward and Richard Carlson is enacted against the historical background of West Point academy. "Ambush," Gladys Swarthout's latest film, with Lloyd Nolan in support, is a second feature at the Madison.

Strange Interlude.

It was a Strange Interlude for Pineville, Mo., when the production company and technical staff moved into the little hill town to make "Jesse James." From nearby cities came thousands of sight-seers and down from the Ozarks came the natives, not only to see, but to take part as extras in the filming of a story which revolved around their favorite legends. They brought out old "guit-tars" and sang again ballads about Jesse. The entire company, including Tyrone Power, Henry Fonda, Randolph Scott and Nancy Kelly, the leads, stayed in Pineville for weeks. The Ohio theater will hold the picture the entire week, running it through Saturday night.

Murder In the Sky.

What looks like just another murder story winds up with a sensational climax in "Island In the Sky," a Ritz feature for Friday and Saturday. Seventy stories up in one of Manhattan's highest hide-ho spots it happens, and the prosecuting attorney's pretty secretary gives up her honeymoon to help solve the mystery. Gloria Stuart, Michael Whalen, Paul Kelly head the cast. A Gene Autry film rounds out the bill.

Madison Books Noted Hill-Billy Troupe Next Week

Mansfield's favorite brand of entertainment—at least the only kind that makes theater-goers line up a block on either side the box office—will be offered at the Madison theater next Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 22 and 23, when the Boone County Jamboree is presented there.

This famous radio troupe of hill-billies and cowboy singers will be brought to Mansfield for afternoon and evening shows on both days.

Included in the array of talent from the Friday night broadcasts from WLW Cincinnati, will be the most of the Boone county folks, among them Lazy Jim Day, homespun humorist of the Boone county clan Helen Diller, Canadian cowgirl singer and yodler; Lafe Harkness, he harmonica wizard and rural cut-up; Hal O'Hallaran, the Irish wit; Kenny Carlson, ventriloquist; the Kentucky girls, Jo and Alma, the Sunset Rangers and a number of other entertainers.

Pa and Ma McCormick, veteran troupers of the WLW talent staff, will also be among the Boone county folks when that group plays here.

The show will be the first big radio attractioon to play here since the visit of the Renfro Valley folks last summer when they broke all house records at the Madison.

New Adventures.

New adventures of Tarzan are depicted in "Tarzan and the Green Goddess," a Park theater attraction. Herman Brix, an Olympic champion, plays the jungle hero as he heads an expedition into the jungles in search of the legendary Green Goddess, an ancient Mayan relic containing a precious secret. "Sky Giant" has Richard Dix and Chester Morris in a story of rival air pilots, with Joan Fontaine thrown in for romance.

Tygers Play Clean Basketball, Commit Fewer Fouls Than Opponents and Win Ball Games; Feller to Get Call In Night Tilts.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

APPARENTLY, it is not necessary to employ rough tactics to win basketball games. The Tygers of Mansfield high school have probably the lowest personal foul average of any team in Ohio, and they have been winning more than their share of games.

In the 13 games played to date, Coach Russ Murphy's proteges have committed only 134 fouls as compared to 173 for their opponents. This gives the Tygers a remarkable average of only 10 fouls per game.

Mansfield struck a new low in personals against Akron West when it was called only four times for infractions. The Tygers committed only five personals in the first Ashland game.

Murphy's men have committed more fouls than their opponents in only one game. This happened against New Philadelphia when they were charged with 12 personals, two more than the Quakers. The highest number of personals called against the Tygers was in the rough Sandusky tilt when 16 were detected.

Only seven times have Tygers been removed from games because of four personals. Opponents suffered the loss of players 10 times.

AVERAGE BOWLING SCORE IN THE U. S. A. IS 162.14 PINS.

MR. BOWLER, rolling in regular league play through the United States, has an average of 162.14 pins. This figure, perhaps the most accurate one computed, was released today after officials of a national sweepstakes averaged the scores of literally thousands of bowlers in all parts of the country now competing for $50,000 in awards. The average represents a cross section of the play of Class A, Class B and Class C bowlers, it was explained. The average scores of all five-man teams, units competing in the sweepstakes, is 810.713 pins. Further breakdown of the averages reveals that Class A bowlers can be counted on to roll an average of 188.71 pins, Class B keglers have an average of 170.49 and Class C bowlers, representing the most part beginners, have an average of 150.92.

Shiloh-Plymouth Cage Tilt To Be Played After Tourney

Game Called Off Last Week to Decide League Title; County Loop Teams Close Season Friday.

THE Twin-Valley league title will not be determined until after the completion of the Richland county basketball tournament, E. J. Joseph of Shiloh high school announced today.

Shiloh and Plymouth, which are tied for first place in the league, were scheduled to tangle last week, but the game was postponed because of the cold and grippe outbreaks at these two schools.

Officials of the schools have decided to play this all-important game as soon as possible after the tournament.

If Shiloh and Plymouth win their games Friday night, the two clubs will carry the tie into the postponed contest.

Shiloh is host to Greenwich, Friday, while Plymouth invades New Haven.

The county league schedule will be concluded Friday night with only a couple of games having any important bearing on a position. The title was cinched by Madison last week.

The headline game involves a meeting at Madison between the Rams and Butler, which holds second place.

Ontario goes to Union and Lexington invades Bellville for the other Friday night tussles.

Shelby, the county's lone representative in the N. C. O. conference, is host to Marion. Friday night, while Ashland goes to Galion and Mt. Vernon to Bucyrus.

Union Cubs Pull Another Major Upset.

THE lowly Union high school Indians pulled off another major upset in the Richland county league race last night when they defeated Lucas, 48 to 39, on the Union hardwood.

Coach James Hunter's Indians, who recently scored an unexpected triumph over Butler, knocked the Cubs out of a tie for second place with the Bulldogs.

The only chance Lucas now has of finishing in a tie for the runner-up position is if Madison outpoints Butler in their meeting on the Rams' court Friday night.

Big first and third periods enabled Union to register its fourth victory in 11 games. The Indians took a 17 to 7 lead in the opening frame, held a 25 to 16 advantage at the half and remained in front by a 39 to 22 margin as play reached the fourth quarter.

Union was unable to completely stop Tom Greulich and Bob Crawford, who scored 16 to 15 points, respectively, but held the other Lucas cagers in tow.

Tolles turned in his greatest performance of the season as he caged 11 baskets and three free throws for 25 points. Swisher contributed 12 points.

The preliminary game was taken by Lucas, 21 to 17.

Young Star and Partner Spill 1373 Sticks in City Doubles League.

CLARENCE (SONNY) MEDER threatened the season's individual bowling record of 760 held by Christ Herrick as he celebrated his biggest night of the current campaign at his dad's alleys last night.

The youthful sharpshooter crashed out a sensational 749 series to establish a new season mark in the City Class A Doubles league. He put together games of 236, 258 and 255 for the big total.

Win Three Games.

Meder and his partner, Duke Weber, who collected 624 pins, turned out scores of 463, 428 and 482 for a 1373 count, which was good for a clean sweep over Carl Heilman and Fred McKinley.

Sonny, who sports a 215 average in the tandem league, collected a six-bagger in each of his first two games. After opening his last game with a spare, he collected five strikes in a row. A "chop" stopped this string, but he came right back with another "five-bagger" to climax his games.

Jimmy Smith walloped the uprights for a spectacular 652 total. Sporting a string of 202, 181 and 269, Smith and his mate, Dale Cleckner, whipped up a 1244, which produced three victories at the expense of Winnie Cleckner and Ed Funston.

Eight In a Row.

Smoth got eight strikes in a row in his 269 game after starting out with a strike and spare.

In the other match, Joe Cheney, featuring a 242, and Cecil Burdett took two decisions from Neil Swank and Jack Applan.

Cleveland's Jeff Heath Joins List of Holdouts.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — The Cleveland Indians' rookie batting sensation, 23-year-old Geoffrey (Jeff) Heath, today became No. 6 on the tribal list of holdouts.

The outfielder, who batted .343 last season to finish second to league-leading Jimmy Foxx, wired a Cleveland sports writer from his Seattle home that the terms of the contract offered him are "very unsatisfactory." Heath joins Mel Harder, Hal Trosky, Lyn Lary, Frankie Pytlak and Willis Hudlin in the holdout camp.

Both Singles and Doubles matches will be played with a champion declared in each division.

Frank Balbaugh won the Singles title last year but it is doubtful whether he will defend his title this year. Dr. Dwight Weir and Clarence Hien won the doubles title last year.

Entry fees for the Singles division will be 25 cents per player and 50 cents per team. Trophies will be awarded winners and runner-up positions in each division.

Players can now register for the tournament at the Y. M. C. A.

'The Swing's the Thing In Golf,' Says Sammy.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(AP)—Samuel Jackson Snead, 25, a ranking money winner in the royal and ancient game of golf, gripped one of his war clubs with big, steady hands and spoke of "jitterbugs."

"You can't dilly-dally around in this game and expect to get anywhere," said the trim athlete from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. "You can't let your nerves get the best of you. It's the hands and feet that count in golf but in a different sense than they're used for the 'big apple'."

"The thing to do in this game," suggested Sammy, "is to get a good grip on your club, step up to a stance and smack that apple. The swing's the thing and don't let anybody tell you otherwise."

THEATERS

THERE'LL be a howl in Hollywood if the acting honors for 1938 should be awarded by the academy to Wendy Hiller for her work in "Pygmalion." She is an English actress, it is an English-made film, and it has not been very widely distributed in America. Miss Hiller, however, was one of the candidates nominated for the academy award, as was Leslie Howard, who played opposite her in that film. No matter how good a foreign film may be there is a widespread feeling that the academy awards should be handed out on American pictures, since the domestic product admittedly is a long way ahead of foreign picures as a whole.

Ice Hockey In Film.

"The Duke of West Point" brings a new sports to the films which is even more exciting than football as depicted by the celluloiid strips. It is ice hockey and the climax is a game between West Point cadets and the Royal Military Academy of Canada, Romance which involves Joan Fontaine, Alan Curtis, Tom Brown, Louis Hayward and Richard Carlson is enacted against the historical background of West Point academy. "Ambush," Gladys Swarthout's latest film, with Lloyd Nolan in support, is a second feature at the Madison.

Strange Interlude.

It was a Strange Interlude for Pineville, Mo., when the production company and technical staff moved into the little hill town to make "Jesse James." From nearby cities came thousands of sight-seers and down from the Ozarks came the natives, not only to see, but to take part as extras in the filming of a story which revolved around their favorite legends. They brought out old "guit-tars" and sang again ballads about Jesse. The entire company, including Tyrone Power, Henry Fonda, Randolph Scott and Nancy Kelly, the leads, stayed in Pineville for weeks The Ohio theater will hold the picture the entire week, running it through Saturday night.

Murder In the Sky.

What looks like just another murder story winds up with a sensational climax in "Island In the Sky," a Ritz feature for Friday and Saturday. Seventy stories up in one of Manhattan's highest hide-ho spots it happens, and the prosecuting attorney's pretty secretary gives up her honeymoon to help solve the mystery. Gloria Stuart, Michael Whalen, Paul Kelly head the cast. A Gene Autry film rounds out the bill.

Laurel and Hardy Comedy.

"Blockheads" brings Laurel and Hardy to the Majestic screen for the last two days of the week. The story opens with Stan Laurel at his post in the trenches during the World war, where he remains for 20 years without knowing that the war is over. Then the action swings back to America, where an old pal, Oliver Hardy, meets Stan and introduces him to his pretty wife, Patricia Ellis. A Western film, "Trigger Pals," with Art Jarrett, the singer, in the lead, will be shown as a second feature.

New Adventures.

New adventures of Tarzan are depicted in "Tarzan and the Green Goddess," a Park theater attraction. Herman Brix, an Olympic champion, plays the jungle hero as he heads an expedition into the jungles in search of the legendary Green Goddess, an ancient Mayan relic containing a precious secret. "Sky Giant" has Richard Dix and Chester Morris in a story of rival air pilots, with Joan Fontaine thrown in for romance.

Madison Books Noted Hill-Billy Troupe Next Week

Mansfield's favorite brand of entertainment—at least the only kind that makes theater-goers line up a block on either side the box office—will be offered at the Madison theater next Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 22 and 23, when the Boone County Jamboree is presented there.

This famous radio troupe of hill-billies and cowboy singers will be brought to Mansfield for afternoon and evening shows on both days.

Included in the array of talent from the Friday night broadcasts from WLW Cincinnati, will be the most of the Boone county folks, among them Lazy Jim Day, homespun humorist of the Boone county clan Helen Diller, Canadian cowgirl singer and yodler; Lafe Harkness, he harmonica wizard and rural cut-up; Hal O'Hallaran, the Irish wit; Kenny Carlson, ventriloquist; the Kentucky girls, Jo and Alma, the Sunset Rangers and a number of other entertainers.

Pa and Ma McCormick, veteran troupers of the WLW talent staff, will also be among the Boone county folks when that group plays here.

The show will be the first big radio attractioon to play here since the visit of the Renfro Valley folks last summer when they broke all house records at the Madison.

NOTICE!

Because, through no fault of its own, The News-Journal has been printing the comic strip "Tailspin Tommy" ahead of the regular release dates, appearance of the feature has been temporarily suspended.

However, the comic strip has not been discontinued.

It will reappear with no interruption in the continuity of the story on Saturday, Feb. 25, in the week-end green tabloid, in which it will appear thereafter.

The new and popular strip, "Blondie," now appears on this page daily.

STEEL, AIRCRAFT STOCKS POINT WAY IN CLIMB

Trading Sentiment Takes Turn for Better as Business News Cheers Dealers.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks took the upward road in today's market, with steels and aircrafts pointing the way.

On the advancing side were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Sperry, DuPont, General Electric, Chrysler, General Motors, Kennecott, Montgomery Ward and U. S. Rubber.

With domestic business news attracting more attention in boardrooms, and the foreign question hardly as ominous as in the past few weeks, trading sentiment seemed to have taken a turn for the better. Bonds were selectively higher. Commodities were narrow.

Market analysts studied trade reports indicating national consumer spending was being well maintained despite a lag in eastern metropolitan centers.

Followers of the utilities noted electric power production for the week ended Feb. 11, was off slightly more than seasonally expected.

Financial quarters were undisturbed by the Dun & Bradstreet summary of bank clearings showing a sizable drop for the week ended yesterday, said to be caused mainly by the Lincoln's birthday holiday.

SCIENTIST SEES SECOND ICE AGE ENGULFING U. S.

Vegetation Change Cited to Show Weather Grows Colder Throughout U. S.

(By United Press)

OBERLIN — Dr. Paul B. Sears, professor of botany in Oberlin college, reveals the past and predicts the future from pollen in mud from the bottom of northern Ohio bogs — mud sometimes still cold from the ice of 10,000 years ago.

With a special tube which the doctor designed himself, specimens of the mud are taken from depths ranging to 40 feet.

"Going down a foot is, roughly speaking, going back 300 years," Dr. Sears said. "We strike bottom at between 35 and 40 feet usually. That means going back 10,000 to 12,000 years—when the great glaciers retreated from the Great Lakes region."

The mud contains pollen which fell to the bottom of Lake Erie from nearby vegetation. For thousands of years the bottom of the lake built up, until today, where the scientist takes his samples, there no longer is a lake—only a greyish-brown bog.

Notes Climates Changing.

"My findings indicate that the climate here gradually is changing toward a colder, moister atmosphere, which eventually may lead to another ice age," Sears said. "We once believed that the great glaciers retreated from 100,000 to 150,000 years ago, but now we know that their retreat was much more recent."

The pollen is embalmed in the mud, and by examining it under a microscope it is possible to determine just what type of vegetation grew upon the shores of the lakes. From the type of vegetation the nature of the climate is indicated.

Dr. Sears, working with his peat sampler at Camden lake near here, pulled up a tube of gray marl from the bottom of the bog—mud 10,000 years old and perfectly preserved. He touched the soft, smooth material.

"It's very cold," he said. "It probably hasn't warmed up in 10,000 years—it might still be cold from that ancient ice."

The oldest forest whose pollen is found at the bottom of the bogs studied is that of spruce and fir.

Trees Reflect Changes.

"Now there's not a remnant of native spruce within 75 miles," Dr. Sears said. "The climate here once was like that of eastern Canada.

"Later came scrub oak, hickories, and grasses, indicating that Ohio once was a prairie land, and it probably was not so long ago. Two or three thousands years ago it was much warmer here, and even when the white man came there still were buffalo in what is now Ohio."

According to Dr Sears, the present conditions here may be but a recess between ice ages.

"The pattern of climatic changes in this region since the last glacial age is quite similar to that of previous interludes between ice ages," he said. "We may be enjoying but a brief respite, geologically speaking, before the ice again descends on the land."

FINDS MASTER

British Librarians Check Up on Thefts of Books.

LONDON —(AP)— The wealthiest readers are the most prolific book thieves, according to the borough librarians of Ealing, a suburb of London.

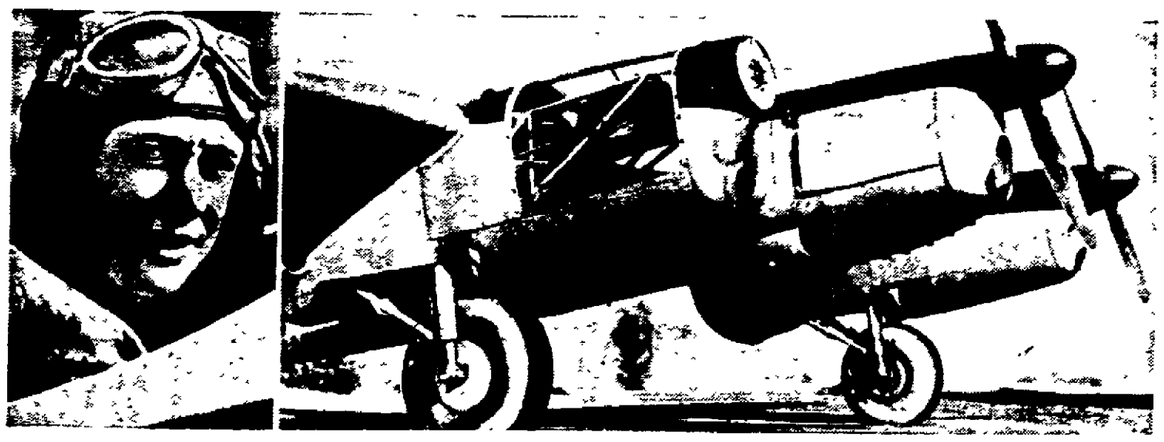
One librarian said the magazines which disappear most quickly are those containing plans for expensive interior decoration schemes in large houses and giving lay-outs for luxury gardens.

"It is obviously prosperous people who commandeer these journals," he added.

BABY TEETH OUT AT 90

MT. VERNON, O.—(U.P.)—A dentist at Danville, near here, was astonished when he extracted the teeth of 90-year-old Samuel Conkle. Two of the molars taken out, the dentist believed, were Conkle's baby teeth.

Crippled Plane Travels 280 Miles Per Hour on Two Motors



—Central Press Photo.

Aviators were amazed as Frank Cordova, Hempstead, L. I., pilot, flew from Cleveland, O., to New Castle, Del., in this crippled plane at an average speed of 280 miles per hour. Cordova made trip to have new right-hand motor installed.

House Passes Bill Ordering Ban On Husband, Wife Jobs

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — By an approving vote of 91 to 24 the house of representatives has sent the bill to prohibit husband and wife from holding state jobs to the senate for further action.

The bill is the pride of Rep. Patrick Dunn, bachelor representative from Tuscarawas county, and is the object of intense dislike by the League of Women Voters.

An exception is made in the bill which allows employment of husband and wife in state welfare institutions. Under terms of the measure, however, both man and wife in other state jobs would be dismissed as soon as it becomes law unless one or the other resigned

A similar bill by Dunn passed the house of representatives in 1935, but was killed in the senate.

In one of his rare speeches on the floor of the house, Dunn urged support for his bill on the theory that if the principal is applied generally throughout the country in both private and public employment, the relief and unemployment problems will be less serious.

TEXAS ORANGES FLOURISH

McCALLEN, Tex. — (U.P.) — George Chapapas, orchardist, reported the 24-year-old orchard of Mrs. H. F. Ferry of McAllen produced 64,000 pounds of oranges during the past season. It is a one-acre orchard and Chapaps believes the production is a record.

Best Cough Remedy Is Easily Mixed at Home

It's So Easy! Makes a Big Saving. No Cooking.

To get the quickest imaginable relief from coughs due to colds, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll never be without it in your home, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed. Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really splendid medicine and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and children love its pleasant taste.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is amazing. You can feel it take hold in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

MANNERS

It's bad manners to cough in public places. Keep Smith Brothers Cough Drops handy! (Two kinds—Black or Menthol—just 5¢.)

Smith Bros. Cough Drops are the only drops containing VITAMIN A

This is the vitamin that raises the resistance of the mucous membranes of the nose and throat to cold infections.

3 BIOGRAPHIES HEAD LIBRARY'S NON-FICTION

Lives of Chateaubriand, Borah and Lincoln Subjects of Latest Additions.

Three biographies on widely varying subjects head the list of new non-fiction at the Mansfield Public library this week. They are on Chateaubriand, Lincoln and Senator William Borah.

Andre Maurois' "Chateaubriand" brings to life a fascinating and paradoxical figure, who left a definite imprint upon literature and politics at a turning point in his country's history. His biography embodies the story of France from Louis XVI through the Revolution, the Napoleonic era, and the restoration of the monarchy. Maurois compares this French romantic with the English romantics, showing Chateaubriand to be the original of that which Byron was so often a copy.

"The Man Who Killed Lincoln" is the story of John Wilkes Booth, southern actor, who fired the shot that killed the president as he sat in Ford's theater in Washington. Written by Philip Von Doren Stern, the biography depicts Booth as a man maddened by the tragedies of the Civil war, of his part in the plot and his attempts to escape after the murder.

Pictures Borah's Role.

"Borah of Idaho" by Claudius O. Johnson, shows the part the stormy petrel of the Republican party has played in national affairs and molding public opinion, in both of which he has always been an independent force.

Other non-fiction this week at the library includes: "Elements of Dairying" by Olsen; "Birth of the Oil Industry," Giddens; "Shop Notes: 1938;" "Make It Yourself," Starr; "Oil Burners," Steiner; "Book of Major Sports," Hughes; "Drivers Up," Akers; "Editor's Choice," Dashiell; "Discussion Methods," Garland and Phillips; "Dithers and Jitters," Skinner; "Passing Judgments," Nathan; "All's Fair: The Story of the British Secret Service," Landau; "What Do You Want for $1 98?" Austin; "Who Gets Your Food Dollar?" Lazo and Bletz; "Handsome Is As Handsome Does," Cades.

On the fiction list there is "Here I Stay" by Elizabeth Coatsworth, a sensative and understanding story of a courageous girl who chose to remain on the Maine farm which she and her father had cleared, when most of their neighbors were pushing westward for the new Ohio country in the Western Reserve.

"A Good Home With Nice People" by Josephine Lawrence is a novel in which two families, each with a single servant, epitomize the pitiful situation of a girl who must earn her living as a maid under the tyranny of housewives.

"The Sword In the Stone" by Terence Hanbury White treats the story of King Arthur's childhood with fantastic humor. Other fiction is "Perri" by Salten; "Prelude for War," Charteris; "Flint Spears," James; "Starry Night," Bower; "Hotel Hostess," Cuthrell; 'High of Heart," Loring; "Sword of Islam," Sabatini.

More than 16,000,000 acres have been approved for government purchase for national park purposes since 1911.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

PLAYS 'JEKYLL AND HYDE' HERE

Character Actor Portrays All Roles in Presenting Play at High School Friday.

The story of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" will be retold tomorrow when William Gifford Bale presents the play at 8:15 p. m. in the Senior high school auditorium.

Bale, a character actor, will portray all six characters in the famous story on dual personalities, written by Robert Louis Stevenson. The play will be given in three acts.

During the first part of the program Bale will present a group of character sketches which will include Huckleberry Finn, Abe Martin and Whispering Bill.

Before beginning his tour of high schools, colleges and universities in the United States, Bale toured Europe in stock companies presenting American folk songs. He was graduated from Westerville high school in 1929, and his first stock company consisted of Westerville and Otterbein college actors.

The performance will be sponsored by the 12-A class of the high school, with proceeds going toward class graduation expenses.

Dates of three coming events of the Girl's Athletic association of the high school were announced today by Miss Margaret Clapsaddle, girl's physical education instructor. March 29 the G. A. A. will present the weekly assembly at the school. Marjorie Mahon is in charge of the event. The annual "Man Dance" will be held April 28 in the high school gymnasium, and the annual Play Day event is set for May 6.

The crop production per farm worker has increased threefold in the last 100 years, experts estimate.

CHAPTER XXVII

Outside the door of her room Jay held Alix's hand and said, "Maybe it's just as well. I'd probably let you down. I'm not very steady. But steadiness and honesty are characteristics you've taught me to wish to cultivate and I'm going to begin tomorrow. Say good-bye to Bernice and Don for me. Too bad for Bernice. She could hear our wedding bells But there's still Palm Beach next winter and Mrs. Harvey's little boy Jay will be there, waiting, and in love, in case you're interested."

He grinned. "Hope is hard to kill. Or maybe, in my case, it's conceit. Good-bye, darling."

Good-bye Jay. Good-bye, dear."

She watched him walk down the long, carpeted hall—and out of her life.

She was packing when Bernice came in.

"You're in early, Alix."

She looked up. "There is nothing more to say after you've said good-bye. I'm not going to marry Jay. I can't. I don't love him enough in the first place, and in the second place, I couldn't be happy with a man who plays his life away. I'm not from that stock, Bernice. I think people should have a purpose. Jay hasn't any. Are you angry and disappointed with me?"

"You know I'm not, darling. I want the best for you, that's all The very best I want to see you have everything you deserve. Just a mother's interest. Don and I decided to come up here because we thought the change would be good for you. And I think it has been. I admit Jay persuaded me a little. He was so anxious to see you again."

She smiled. "But now you can go with Don and me on the cruise we plan to take in the winter. Would you like that?"

"You're much too good to me, Bernice." And she thought, "I want nothing except Kurt. . . ."

When Bernice left, Alix went out on the balcony again, thinking. "Kurt, where are you tonight?" Words flung to the sea . . " "Where are you? Why couldn't you have loved me when I love you so much? Everything has been offered except the one thing I want most—you. You have a purpose, Kurt, and high standards and ideals."

They left in the morning. As the car pulled away from the hotel, she glanced back, thinking that the past three weeks had been the most glamorous weeks she had ever known. Nor would she forget Jay, debonair and ardent. Jay was her playmate, she thought, Eddie her friend. Kurt her love.

Motoring south, they stopped in New York for a few days though Alix would have preferred going directly home, knowing that New York would still be haunted with Kurt and their one almost perfect evening there.

This was not living, she often thought. This was merely going through the motions of living though neither Don nor Bernice suspected. They were proud of her and took her everywhere. And in New York, too, there were scores of new people to meet, more parties, and young men attracted by her detachment with whom she danced in night clubs and on hotel roofs, who sent her flowers, and asked to see her again. She would remember none of them.

Were Kurt and Gina here? She asked herself that question often that week. To see him again . . To see him again . . . Why of all men in the world did it have to be he?

They arrived at Ivy House late one afternoon and Nancy and Tod were there to greet them How good it was to be in Tod's arms again!

"We went down to see Tuck and she's fine," he said, still holding his sister closely 'She's keeping an album of your pictures—your pictures in the paper."

Alix laughed. "And probably the bathing suit poses shocked her. I'll have to explain them."

She tried to make her voice casual when she asked, "Have you seen or heard anything of Kurt?" as if she didn't care any more

Nancy said, "No, nothing He's dropped out of sight."

And Eddie?"

"He was with us when we went down to see Tuck. He's going to call you tonight." Nancy smiled "Tod likes him. They were friends immediately. Everybody likes Eddie. Alix, I thought maybe you and Jay . . . People who saw you together thought . . ."

"No, I couldn't."

Nancy understood.

They went in to dinner. And later when the servants said that Alix was wanted on the telephone, she went inside slowly and without curiosity, knowing that it was Eddie Staunch, dependable Eddie. He would always be so Eddie would always be there when the men she had met in the past weeks had forgotten the color of her hair and eyes and even her name and all the foolish, tender, lovely things they had said to her.

She picked up the phone and said, "Hello, Eddie. How are you?"

"I'm okay. And how are you? You didn't come back engaged—or something, did you?"

"Not engaged or anything."

"Not engaged for tonight?"

She gave a short little laugh and said, "Come out tonight You know you're welcome any time, Eddie. Nancy and Tod are here. It's quite a family party And if you've skipped dinner again, I think we can find you something when you get here."

He said soberly, "You haven't changed. I'm glad of that."

He was there in an incredibly short time

The weeks passed and with them the radiance of summer. There were many days when it was too cool to swim in the pool and often at night a fire was lighted in the large stone fireplace in the drawing-room Don and Bernice continued to entertain lavishly There was scarcely a week-end when there were not guests in the house

Alix rode frequently When she was absent from the house, Bernice knew that she was riding through the picturesque valley and when she returned slim boyish-looking in the brown riding clothes, Bernice knew that in loneliness she was trying to solve her problems

When she came in one morning, Bernice asked her to come up to her sitting-room.

'Alix, aren't you happy with us?"

And Alix stood by the window, her hands deep in the pockets of the mannish little jacket, and said 'It isn't you It's I For weeks I've been having a battle with myself, asking myself if, loving one man, I could make another a good wife. I love Kurt so much But I'm like a child who refuses to believe that her favorite toy is broken beyond mending. Eddie and I have a foundation of friendship We've been through things together We've always been honest with each other We'd go into marriage with our eyes open and with no illusions about each other."

"I can't help you in this, dear."

"I know No one can. I've got to decide And it isn't fair to Eddie to keep putting him off I've tried and tried to find the answer but I always come back to Kurt. It takes a lot to kill my stubborn hope But there isn't any hope, Bernice. But—but if he should come in now . . ." The tears sprang in her eyes. "Sorry. I don't want to worry you with this."

Should she tell Bernice that Kurt and Gina were married? No. Soon the world would know. Surely, wherever they were, it would not be a secret much longer

"I like to talk about him," she said softly. "It brings him close. But he isn't close, Bernice. I tried to fall in love with Jay. I really tried And I couldn't feel anything All my life, when I'm not busy running away from myself, I'm going to think about Kurt and want him."

Bernice looked at her with great kindness and understanding, wondering if Alix were aware of the change in herself. She had grown lovelier, more poised. The Alix of today in her smart riding clothes, her hair perfect, was a far cry from the shabby little girl they had first known. If only Kurt had met her first! If only he had met the Alix of today!

Firemen Roused By Girls Groping For Light Switch

EAST ROCHESTER, N. H.—(INS)—The "best" false alarm story of the year is the dubious boast of the East Rochester fire department.

The firemen, all call-men, were routed out of their warm beds, in zero weather, by loud blasts of the electrically-operated siren on top of the fire station.

The heroes rushed to their posts to be greeted by a group of sheepish girls They had been playing basketball in the auditorium above the fire station and had used a room off the station as a dressing room.

It was dark in the room and in hunting the light switch, the girls said, one of them pushed the button that sounded the fire alarm.

Huge Earth Slide In Idaho Puzzles Geology Experts

PRESTON, Idaho—(INS)—Geologists were puzzled over the gigantic earth slide that moved 2,000,000 tons of earth and shifted a 25-acre farm pasture fifty feet into the Bear river. A large icy-covered pond on the plot of ground affected by the slide was not disturbed. Not even a crack in the ice showed. Cattle grazing on the sliding terrain scrambled to safey as their pasture began to move.

Two small boys skating on a nearby slough witnessed the phenomenon.

"We heard a lot of popping and rumbling," 12-year-olds Ivan Thorpson and Francis Rasmussen said. "We looked up and saw the hill was gone—the one we used to hunt rabbits on."

Affecting an area equal to two city blocks, one corner of the pasture slid far enough to almost dam the river. After the 50-foot drop the surface of the pasture was folded like an accordion and was stratiated with large cracks except around the area of the pond.

Professor W. A. Rice, Ohio investigating geologist, explained that a deeply-embedded layer of impervious clay below a layer of sand might have caused a "shoot" over which the hillside fell into the water.

U. S. Seeks Coster Henchmen on Liquor Charge.

NEW YORK — (UP) — Three men, described by federal authorities as subordinates of the late F. Donald Coster (Philip Musica) in a huge bootleg liquor business conducted through subsidiaries of McKesson & Robbins, Inc., are being sought in New England on federal warrants.

Assistant U S Attorney Arthur T. Gorman said the warrants were obtained in New Haven, Conn., and that the men, if apprehended, would be taken before a federal grand jury there on Feb. 14. Evidence already gathered, he said, indicated that the three played an integral part in dumping thousands of gallons of illicit alcohol into retail trade channels under forged standard brand labels.

COUNTY NEAR TOP IN SALES TAX INCREASES

Ranks Second in Pouplation Class in Gain Last Month Over January, 1938.

Richland county ranked second among Ohio counties in its population class in gain in sales tax receipts for January over the same month last year, figures released by State Treasurer Don H. Ebright showed today.

Only Trumbull county in the northeast corner of the state topped Richland in revenue increase for the month, Trumbull showing a gain of $5,511 against $3,780 for Richland.

Richland county was sixth among all the state's 88 counties in amount of increase for January, but four of the leading counties are in the metropolitan centers.

Pays $31,000 In January.

The Richland county sales tax revenue last month totaled $31,599 as compared with $27,819 in January last year.

Thirty-three of the state's counties showed increases, while 55 produced less sales tax revenue than in the first month of 1938, the figures showed.

Heading the list in gains were Cuyahoga county (Cleveland,) Franklin (Columbus,) Lucas (Toledo,) and Mahoning (Youngstown.)

Major gains were in the industrial centers in the northern half of the state. In the Mansfield area, Ashland, Morrow and Knox counties reported increases for the month, and Huron and Holmes counties showed declines.

Expert Will Tell How to Maintain Perfect Health

One of the most important factors in maintaining perfect health is the ductless glands of the body and yet these are almost an "unknown quantity" to the average person.

Dr. Alexander Davis, noted health lecturer, who will conduct the News-Journal charm school here next week, has devoted years to the study of the ductless glands, their functions and their relationship to health and beauty.

The valuable part that the ductless glands play in personality, beauty and charm, will be explained to Mansfield audiences by Dr. Davis during the three sessions which will be held next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at Senior High school auditorium.

He has also made a study of psychology, psychoanalysis and psychotherapy, as well as biochemistry and diet. As a result of his studies he is convinced that the human body can be restored to youthfulness and health and that personal charm can be developed.

The sessions will open at 2 p. m. each day.

"Memories"

Fond memories—and mother recalls how her own mother lined up her little family at bed time and gave them Father John's Medicine—telling them 'twould help check their colds and make them stronger men and women.

Father John's Medicine is still the favorite medicine in many homes. Today, as then, sensible mothers follow the example of their own, mothers by giving their families Father John's Medicine for colds and body building.

It is pure, wholesome, rich in vitamins and free from all injurious drugs.

Report McNutt Advised to Drop Presidential Ambitions Denied.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—A published story to the effect that President Roosevelt had advised Paul V. McNutt, high commissioner to the Philippines, to cease running for the presidency or resign his $18,000 a year post, has been ridiculed at the White House.

"The president," said Secretary Stephen Early, "has had not communication with Gov. McNutt about his plans, present or future. So far as we know, Gov. McNutt is still in the Philippines." McNutt-for-President headquarters were recently opened in Indianapolis by his friends.

It seems odd that archeologists go to such distant places in their search for the missing link.

With "the book of the month" duly popularized, isn't it about time for a "map of the month" to keep tab on Europe?

As nearly as can be guessed, President Roosevelt would have no objection to Virginia's senior senator becoming inaudible Glass.

Matter of Public Concern.

CHARGES made by the American Legion that un-American activities have been engaged in at Ohio State university are to be investigated by a committee of university trustees.

It is entirely proper that the American Legion, if it has information upon which to base such charges, should take the initiative in matters of this kind.

Whatever tolerance there may be in this country for privately financed preachment of subversive doctrines, there can be no acceptance of an idea that so-called "academic freedom" permits instructors, or other employes of tax-supported educational institutions—colleges or public schools—to indulge in advocacy of any alien "isms."

Unfortunate as it may be, it has become evident in recent years that the field of education has been invaded by at least a small percentage of visionary thinkers who have been attracted to the theories of socialism, communism, fascism, naziism, and the like.

It is no denial of freedom of thought or speech to say that such persons as these should have no place in the American educational system and that they should be weeded out of tax-supported colleges and schools as quickly as possible.

If those who are teachers of American youth cannot be depended upon to respect and conscientiously support the principles of democracy in government, the future of this nation is indeed seriously endangered.

Such incidents as that in which some Massachusetts educators, labor organizations and Communists join in asking the legislature of that state to repeal a law requiring teachers to take an oath of fealty to state and national constitutions, are not reassuring.

Saloon Conditions Were Preferable.

DANGER of accomplishing nothing, as a result of attempting too much, is seen in a bill introduced into the Ohio legislature and intended to drastically restrict the liquor traffic in this state.

Past experience, leading up to a period of prohibition, has shown that progress in regulation of this traffic is by slow stages and indicates that best present procedure would be to restore the relatively innocuous conditions of old-time saloon days before trying to advance beyond that point.

Before saloons were put out of business, for instance, county liquor commissions had been established for close scrutiny of character of licensees; use of screens to cut off view of interior of liquor places had been prohibited; music, or any form of entertainment, was not permitted in saloons; minors were not admitted and employment of girls or women was not allowed. Also the number of saloons was limited on a population basis, and the $1,000 license fee prevented liquor sales places springing up in rural sections. Beer was classed with intoxicants and sold only in saloons, thus preventing beer places invading residential sections or being close to schools or churches.

Loose handling of the liquor business in Ohio, with large responsibility placed on the state board of liquor control for issuance of licenses and establishing regulations, has brought an intolerable condition throughout the state and immediate corrective steps are recognized as urgent.

There will be an advantage, however, in taking these steps advisedly, and in accord with public sentiment, rather than again adopting an extremist attitude such as led to the unfortunate experiment in prohibition before the country was ready for such an advanced step.

Why Not Choose Peace?

THE GREAT Wall of China, which offered no barrier to Japanese invasion, was long supposed to have protected China from other enemies. Yet even in the days of the Great Wall's strength, barbarians used to break through it and it was necessary to push them out again by warfare.

One of the Han emperors thought about this and decided to try a new kind of defense. He wrote a letter to the barbarians. It is amazingly timely and rates thoughtful study today. There was, he said, no good reason for the two peoples to fight each other. It would be much better for both if they maintained peace. He sent them large gifts of food because the climate to the north was much harsher than that south of the Great Wall. He promised to follow up the food with clothing and other useful things.

"Now we are at peace," he said. "Let us stay at peace. Heaven does not cover just one person, or the people of one country. It covers all of us. The earth is the common resting place of men. Let us forget any little quarrels which may arise, and go on as friends."

Perhaps it didn't work any better than such an appeal would work today. But it spoke truth and wisdom.

A Barber Who Worked and Saved.

WHEN a barber died in Coldwater, Mich., the other day, it was found that he left an estate of $100,000, acquired during eighteen years in which he did all the work in a one-chair shop.

There is the likelihood, of course, that in that time he put some of his savings into real estate or other conservative investments which added to his shop earnings.

Whether there was justification for the industry, thrift and self-denial he must have practiced to accumulate a sizable fortune, may be questioned at a time when liberal spending by individuals is being encouraged on every hand, with the idea that government will take care of those who spend themselves into poverty.

The important thing, however, is that such things can be done—and are being done, in one way or another, by many people.

Keeping Step

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C. — A friend of mine who holds a job on the federal payroll (not a civil service job, but one he can be fired from with precious little ceremony) received a letter the other day that he thinks has quite a bit of political significance in it.

It is on the engraved stationary of the "Democratic National Committee, National Press Building, Washington, Office of the Treasurer."

Then follows the address (I can't give my friend's name, for obvious reasons). "Dear Mr. So-and-so"—Then the letter:

"In a conference with Chairman Farley yesterday (the letter's date was Jan. 31, 1939), wherein it was decided to submit to President Roosevelt a financial report of the Democratic National Committee, we noticed, in going over our records that you have not as yet completed your pledge made at the time of the 1938 Jackson Day Dinner.

"Before submitting the final report I thought it best to ask you once again if you do not want to liquidate this indebtedness.

"Will you please let us have your prompt . ply?"

Then, after "Sincerely yours," comes the signature, manual and typewritten, of "Oliver A. Quale, jr."

Down in the lower left-hand corner of the page is the notation. "OAQjr/lf." I don't know what "lf" means, but I can guess on "OAQjr."

A Veiled Threat?

"Now," asks my friend, "is there a veiled threat in this thing?"

If he were not now on the federal payroll it would not follow that there was such a threat implied, certainly.

But he IS on the federal payroll.

BEFORE he was on it he was a subscriber to one of those $5-dinners at $100 per plate which have gone so far toward wiping out the Democratic committee's deficits in the near future. That is to say, that is what will ensue if the $100 subscribers will scratch up their subscriptions fast and generally enough.

This letter of Mr. Quayle, jr.'s might hint that some of them are a trifle derelict.

A richer-than-mud subscriber OUGHT to cough up his $100 speedily.

Analyze his case, and it readily can be established that he did not get anything (directly) in return for his subscription; it was just sociability.

But the little pewee, like my friend? HE got a federal job.

At the present juncture—is he being asked to PAY for it?

The belief is that thousands of his kind of letters are being broadcast.

I can not prove thousands but I can prove one of 'em.

You can draw your own conclusions anyway.

Our Foreign Relations.

Our foreign relations are in a heck of a state, too.

What do our World war veterans think of the administration's overseas policies?

Well, a few days ago Major Ralph H. Case, a past commander of our groups of legionnaires, offered me a motto—

"Lafayette, we were there!"

We were there once, and once was a great sufficiency.

Don't miss the point. We were THERE. We've BEEN there.

'Nough said.

Generally we are isolationist—just our own continent.

Grand!—if we can stay so.

LAW GIVERS!

The Human Side of the News

—By EDWIN C. HILL

ECHOES of the fantastically incredible Coster swindle — the financial double and triple-dealing of the ex-convict who became head of a $100,000,000 century-old, chemical supplies firm, only to crash and put a bullet through his own brain—still reverberate in the news.

He was one of several "men of straw," as the biographer, Henry F. Pringle called them in an article of his written for Cosmopolitan Magazine some years ago. And yet, startling as were his criminalities, as amazing his social affronteries, he was a mere child compared to the two giants of fraud who sailed across the financial firmament only a few years ago, casting a fierce light upon the world, only to disappear in an ocean of ignominy.

I am thinking now of the Belgian, Alfred Lowenstein, and of the Swede, Ivar Krueger, kings respectively of utilities and matches. Both began as poor boys, driven forward by a burning ambition for wealth and power, and when, as Mr. Pringle wrote, they had achieved both they did not know how to stop and rest and enjoy the fruits of their remarkable achievements.

In each there was a twisted streak which, like base metal, deflected the compass of their honor. Each fell a prey to the illusion and delusion of grandeur. In Barcelona, some twelve years ago, I saw Alfred Loewenstein arrive over the sky lanes with a staff of fifty, in a fleet of a dozen planes — an imperial approach. That was the way he operated. Whole floors at de luxe hotels. Magnums of champagne only. Huge motor cars always in waiting in every capital of Europe.

In 1925, the French government made private inquiries regarding his general reliability. Loewenstein invited the officials to his Biarritz estate when word of this came to his ears. They were transported from Paris in airplanes and special trains. Vaudeville artists, singers and pugilists were engaged for their entertainment. Loewenstein was vague, however, when specific questions were asked. He went on floating enormous loans, millions of dollars at a time, and sinking the cash in electric power, banks, railroads, artificial silk.

BY 1928, he was supposed to be worth $100,000,000. Short, heavy-set, dark, broad-shouldered, with physical fitness almost a mania, the Belgian enjoyed everything that money could buy, and his mode of life became flashy in the extreme. He patronized the best tailors, and his suits were dark, well-cut and conservative enough. But he had a weakness for vivid cravats and he wore striped colored shirts with a striped stiff collar of the same material. But powerful as he was and rich as he was, the aristocrats of Europe snubbed him relentlessly.

Then came the end, on July 4, 1928. Loewenstein's private plane took the air at Croyden airport for Brussels. With him were Captain Ronald Drew, the pilot, two women secretaries, a mechanic and Baxter, the valet. None of these five individuals noticed anything unusual in Loewenstein's conduct. The ship took the air. For once Loewenstein did not work as he traveled. He read a book. The plane droned on at about four thousand feet toward the French coast, and soon the Dunkirk sands were in sight. At about this time the Belgian arose and went back toward a compartment aft on the ship.

When, after fifteen minutes, he had not returned, Baxter, the valet, became alarmed. He found that his employer had vanished; that the door of the plane was open. Baxter rushed to the glass partition which separated the pilot's cabin from the rest of the plane. He could not make himself heard above the roar of the engines, at first.

It wasn't until July 19th that Loewenstein's body was found floating in the channel. Identification was established by means of a wrist watch and through dental work. Loewenstein was really dead. Did he kill himself? A coroner's board in Paris gave an official verdict of suicide. It can hardly be denied that he faced an enormous shrinkage of his personal fortune and serious permanent loss of prestige. On the other hand, how could he have tossed himself from the plane? The ship was taken up by experts on the next day. They found it almost impossible to open the door while the plane was flying. Two mechanics pushed against it in vain; the rush of air past the ship held the door tightly shut. It will probably always remain a mystery.

ANOTHER "man of straw" I knew well—Ivar Kreuger. At twenty, timid, shy, unimpressive, he came to this country with only $100 in his pocket. Yet within a dozen years he was able to seize control of the match industry of the world. He owned railroads, steamship lines, banks, hotels, mines. He loaned millions to European governments in return for match monopolies. This tall, erect, silent pale-faced Swede trod the world like a giant.

He became a legend while he was still alive. He never carried less than $50,000 in his pockets. He fascinated and hypnotized hard-boiled bankers all over the world. And he had the world at his feet. But, like Coster, it was not in him to go straight. He committed outright forgeries for millions of dollars when his financial ship began to sink. And then, when the bankers called him to an accounting, he went out in the street of Paris, bought a pistol and, like Coster, put a bullet through his brain.

A Farmer's Diary

The Snow Storm.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THIS afternoon a heavy storm was on. When I came nome from town, no matter how tightly I drew up the windows of my car, the wee fine particles of snow sifted through like spray upon the cushions and on my overcoat. I felt the invigorating tang of the winter blast upon my face, within my snug enclosure. Upon the smooth surface of the road ahead, great wisps of curling snow crept and raced, like living things. The air was filled with tiny particles, blown by erratic gusts. The wooded hills, to the right, were indistinct, and farther back blended with the whiteness of the fields. The farm houses and outbuildings were blurred and faded patterns of their usual selves.

I passed the village, and left the broad even highway, to finish my trek along the gravel road. Here the hard packed snow had melted and formed a smooth ice sheet. On this, the rear of my car swung and slid, as I moved into the storm. Several times I came dangerously near to sliding into a deep roadside ditch. It was a risk, and yet there was keen delight in my car's gallant response, and I kept on going.

Along the road to the south, when I made the turn, the wind had piled the narrow road with drifts. I plowed along until my front wheels were buried in hard-packed snow — then backed, and barged ahead until I managed to get through. By another night, the drifts will be too deep for traffic. I'll have to take my shovel along, tomorrow.

Within the barn, thin bands of snow lay far in upon the mows, like clean white bars. The overhanging cobwebs had changed their dusty hue to dainty outlines of lacy white.

Sparrows darted from the storm into the sheltering hollows of the straw stack. Chickadees rode up and down upon the currents of fickle wind, in delighted unmindfulness of the cold.

When evening came, and all the chores were done, I sat and warmed my feet by the old wood fire, and listened to the howling storm without. The old house, low and solid, did not tremble. Only the beat of the whipping sleet against the glass seemed to add a piquant accent to my warmth and comfort.

Health Advice

Solving Problem of Disease.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

FOUR OR five years ago my friend, Dr. Stuart Pritchard told me when we met at a medical society meeting that he was going to retire from the active practice of medicine. I deprecated this because he was a brilliant diagnostician in diseases of the lungs, one of the foremost authorities on tuberculosis in the United States.

He replied that he had something bigger in mind. He had, he felt, in his work in life that far only been trying to drain a stagnant lake by taking an eye-dropper full of scummy water from its surface at a time.

Now he had an opportunity to show what a thoroughly planned engineering scheme would do to a stagnant human lake of disease and maladjustment. He said he probably would be criticized by the powers that were for violating certain principles in medical ethics, but he then consigned them to a place graphically described by a Signor Dante in a highly-praised little effusion published in the 13th century.

What he was going to do, he said, was to show that disease and human suffering could be banished from the earth; or, at least, to make a more reasonable statement, reduced to a point where they could be discerned only by diligent search.

I thought then, to put it mildly, that he was somewhat over-enthusiastic, but it appears he has made good.

What happened was that the W. K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Mich., donated enough money—$46,000,000 —to demonstrate in seven counties in Michigan near Battle Creek, with a population of 220,000, that a thorough and well-directed program for medical care could approximate Dr. Pritchard's ideal.

Down Their Throats.

Dr. Pritchard went at things in a rather autocratic manner. He just naturally forced health down the throats of that community. But he got results.

He established efficient, non-political health departments. All the children were examined and treated—free, most of the time—for whatever ailed them. The most modern scientific methods of handling the women in childbirth were introduced. All the newborn babies in that community were handled as if they had been the quintuplets; that is, in a thoroughly modern scientific manner.

Proper immunization against diphtheria, smallpox, whooping cough, typhoid fever and goiter were instituted.

The condition of living were made sanitary and doctors of public health took charge of sewerage and insect pests, water supply and other matters.

School Rebuilt.

The schools were rebuilt or re-equipped so that they had sanitary toilets, electric lights, more sunshine, attention to the eyes, ears and bodies of the pupils. Most of all, the teachers were renovated, their preparation and education improved.

He must have had plenty of opposition to begin with. But he has finally convinced the hardest bunch of opposition of all—those he was trying to help. In a vote of these counties on the question of whether the people were willing to tax themselves 25 cents apiece to continue the work, they voted "Yes" almost unanimously.

What has been done there can be done all over the country. It proves that we can solve the problem of disease. We may not have made much progress in governing ourselves, or in eliminating the scourge of war, or in leveling human economic inequalities, but the fundamental sourse of happiness can be controlled.

Listen, World!

The Root of All Evil Is—FEAR!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU'VE heard it said that "the root of all evil is money." 'Tisn't so. The root of all evil is FEAR.

Go to the bottom of any problem—yours or the other fellow's, or the world's—and you'll find just one thing, the same thing—FEAR.

Why are people jealous? They're AFRAID. Afraid someone will show them up . . . beat them to the goal.

Why are people selfish? They're AFRAID. Afraid they won't get their share . . . their share of power . . . or possessions . . . or love . . . or comfort . . . or safety . . . or whatever they covet at the moment. So they dare not let go and think of the Other fellow. They MUST concentrate on SELF . . . serve Self . . . guard Self . . . hover endlessly over their SELVES like buzzards circling over carion.

Why are people bullies? They're AFRAID. Afraid someone will discover they're weak . . . just as weak as other people. So they have to make a big noise or throw their fists around, to hide the fact.

Why are people GREEDY . . . STINGY?

Why are people CONCEITED . . . BOASTY?

Why are people CROOKED and CRUEL?

Why are people UNFAITHFUL . . . DISLOYAL . . . DISHONEST?

There's your own and only worst enemy . . . FEAR. Every mean thing you have ever done . . . every "smartie or show-off" thing . . . every greedy and grabby thing . . . every petty and pesty thing . . . has sprung from one common root—FEAR.

Want to spend an interesting half hour? A half hour that would cost you $25 if you went to a psychiatrist? Then take a pad of paper, sit down, write an honest record of every disagreeable, detestable or dishonest act you've committed within the last week . . . and trace each act to its source. You won't have to trace far. They all came from—FEAR.

THERE IS ONLY ONE SIN . . . FEAR. It simplifies life a lot when you realize that fact. You're accustomed to think of sin in many forms . . . so many forms, in fact, that it seems utterly impossible to combat them all. How on earth can you conquer your endless weaknesses and bad habits—your fibs, your laziness, your vanity, your general cussedness? The outlook's hopeless—

No, it isn't!

For you don't have to fight innumerable weaknesses—

Hydra-headed monsters of Sin. You've only one weakness—

Only one enemy—

YOUR OWN FEAR!

Only one problem to tackle . . . only one obstacle barring you from Success, holding you back from Happiness . . . FEAR. Grab that fact and your whole life will be changed. Stop thinking of yourself as a regiment of devils and realize you've just one imp to lick and you'll feel differently toward everything . . . toward your Neighbor and your Nation, your God and your Job and your own silly Self.

Just one thing to lick. Then what's holding you? ROLL UP YOUR SLEEVES AND JUMP IN!

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK — Here's the daguerreotype of a hero with clothes pins on his ears, culled from the letter of a correspondent. It isn't often that we betray confidences by printing personal notes, but this is a little different, as I think you will agree:

"My most personal contact with a star of any recognition came on a trip about 1925 when I grew tired of a hotel and wanted to live in a private home. I went to Pasadena and got off at a street called Portia street, and upon inquiring at a cute little house where I could get a nice room for a few weeks I was informed by the motherly looking person at the door that she would like to have me, as she was alone with the exception of an actor staying there and he was gone most of the time.

"It was arranged, and that evening at dinner I met the actor. It was none other than Clark Gable and he had never made a movie at the time, but he was acting in a play called 'Madam Frederick,' with Pauline Frederick at the El Capitan theater in Hollywood. He was just like any other nice fellow, very pleasant, and he gave us tickets to come and see the play.

WE HAD many good times together. He was just a big, friendly fellow, not at all like an actor, stuck his fingers in the icing of a cake, ate huge chunks of gingerbread, and kept me in hysterics at the dinner table over the funny faces he made while eating.

"He never went out much at night and always came home after the theater, usually with make-up on his face. He didn't have money in those days, and had to rent the tuxedo he wore in the play; we even helped him dye a brown pair of oxfords black to wear with the tuxedo. He also drove an old French car, a Roamer, I think, and we used to drive to the corner to get cream for the coffee.

"When he was at the theater I used to fill his pillow-slip with cold cream jars, and put the shower hose in the foot of his bed so he'd think it was a snake, and then wait up in my room till he came home to see what sort of commotion he'd make. He never would say a word. But one night I heard him draw his foot out with a jerk and he hit his knee on the wall and let out a 'DAM,' and by that time I was eating the sheets to keep from laughing.

EVEN when Mrs. Walker (the lady's name) had to ask for his room when she expected a guest from Canada and told him he could use the davenport in the front room, he didn't complain. But I did have the time of my life then teasing him. If he took a nap I generally hung clothespins on his ears, the snapping kind, so maybe that is the reason they are so big. He was very modest and worried continually for fear the small screen Mumsie stood up around the davenport for him at night would tip over. Generally when I came home at night from a dance or a theater I made as much noise as ever. It was fun, but had I known he would one day become famous I know I'd never have had the courage to tease him as much as I did."

So there it is, a glimpse of the Gable that not many people knew. And if the correspondent who included this in her letter is taken aback, she has only herself to blame. After all, she shouldn't write such interesting letters.

1. Is rhubarb a fruit or a vegetable?

2. Do so-called "fixed stars" move?

3. How fast can a racing pigeon travel?

A man must make his opportunity, as oft as find it.—Francis Bacon.

One-Minute Test Answers.

1. It is a vegetable, as the edible part is prepared from the leaf stalks.

2. All stars are in motion. Fixed stars are so called because they appear to change their positions so slowly in comparison with planets.

3. Forty miles an hour is the average, although speeds of 60 or 70 miles an hour are known.

DENY WOERTH KILLED 2, SELF

Members of Family Insist He 'Couldn't Have Done It,' Blame Outsider.

Neighbors as well as members of the family told News-Journal representatives today that Mr. Woerth was unusually "tender-hearted," and that he was unable to kill even a chicken because the sight of blood upset him and he disliked taking the life of any living thing.

Yet as police reconstruct the tragedy, the person who killed the two women paused after those two gruesome tragedies to sharpen a knife which he then used to kill himself.

Blame Fourth Person.

Members of the Woerth family believe that a fourth person entered the home and, possibly caught in the act of prowling killed one person and then the others to cover the first crime. They point to the fact that the Woerth home at 39 Lexington avenue was apparently a mecca for tramps because of the fact that none was ever turned from the door without food, and that Mrs. Woerth frequently asked them to wait while she cooked food for them.

Although fingerprints on the hammer and knife were being analyzed by police today, the family are of the opinion that even if the prints are found to be those of Mr. Woerth, it will not clear the mystery for them as a fourth person could easily have made the prints with the dead man's hands.

Chief Bates however discounted the importance of the missing keys. He said that police had received a call Saturday night from Mrs. James C. Rettig, 258½ South Main street reporting that the compartment in her car, which occupies one of the Woerth garages had been broken into and ransacked and that the Woerth car, in the same garage, had also been ransacked. Capt. T. M. Bell and Lieut. Bruce Friday investigated and found that three keys in a case had been taken from the car. One key was for the house, one for the car and one for a down town office. Lieut. Friday suggested to Woerth that he have the Yale lock changed on his home since some unknown person would have access to it. Woerth scoffed at the idea, according to police, saying that he wasn't afraid.

Bates said today that he believed the keys had been stolen by boys who were prowling around the neighborhood.

URGES BOARD TO GUIDE T-B PLAN

Medical Society's Committee Sends Recommendations to County Commission.

Members of the executive board will serve without pay.

Duties of the director, as outlined by the medical society, include:

1. Check of the county's sanitorium cases in other sections of the state at least once a month.
2. Re-check cases.
3. Visit convalescent's home and supervise treatment of patient.

The committee recommended that the T. B. nurse be continued to handle county cases and that equipment and supply funds be established.

Appointment of the director, most important step in organizing the program, is expected to reduce the cost of supervising T. B. cases and provide more careful examination and treatment.

Because funds from the half-mill tax levy will not be available until 1940, commissioners said it probably will be necessary to borrow against the levy late this year in order to launch the program.

Mitchell said enough funds had been set up to provide for the care of convalescent cases this year. The levy is expected to provide about $45,000 a year for five years.

Conferring with the commissioners this morning were Drs. John S. Hattery, Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner; W. H. Buker, of Bellville E. D. Dowds, of Shelby; F. J. Herringhaus, L. C. Nigh, C. R. Keller, Philmour Bein and Lincoln Fisher.

the house without some of their own folks along. After that I shoveled a path around to the side door and went in there and called 'Johnny!' a couple of times. Then when I didn't get an answer I went to get Will Herrold next door."

Herrold, a neighbor of the Woerths for nearly a quarter of a century, summoned the police, Mr. Woerth's sister, and Dr. R. V. Myers, the family physician, after a telephone call to the Woerth home failed to bring a response.

Sensed Tragedy.

Arriving in a few minutes, Miss Woerth led the way up the narrow stairway in the home to find the stiffened body of her niece, Miss Loretta Woerth, in bed. Herrold and Mr. Baer followed the horror-stricken sister who said she felt she would find tragedy when she entered the cold house

Neighbors of the Woerths were mystified by the complete silence that attended the triple killings. They went about their duties as usual Tuesday night and Wednesday, unaware of the tragedy that had occurred only a few feet away. Police said there probably were no screams when the acts were committed.

Only near relatives were permitted in the home last night by police who guarded entrances. Police and newspapermen went about the home in silence as if the death pall had settled over the entire neighborhood The house was icy cold, because the furnace had gone out.

A telephone call for Mr. Woerth brought a brief reply from his sister who said: "He's gone."

ORGANIZE NEW P. T. A. UNIT AT GALION SCHOOL

Council Votes to Form Group at Senior High; Plans for Founders' Day.

GALION—By motion at the regular meeting of the Galion City Parent-Teacher Association council Wednesday night at Senior high school, the council decided to back a local P. T. A. unit in the Senior high school and will lend its support to this new unit in its organization. R. W. Patterson, assistant principal of the high school, was named to investigate the possibilities of organizing such a unit.

The council also reported on programs of plans for the annual Founders' Day celebration to be held Feb. 20 at the high school when the speaker will be Karl Burns, field secretary of the Ohio Education association. Other highlights of the program will include a candlelight service; group singing; invocation by Rev. O. E. Knepp, pastor of the United Brethren church; group of songs by the Mother Singers. All P. T. A. units of the city have postponed their February meetings to participate in this celebration.

Reports $75 Profit.

A report by Mrs. William Diesem, who was chairman for the supper which the council sponsored two weeks ago, showed that the amount of $75.49 was cleared.

Announcement was also made of the district convention to be held at Ashland on Feb. 23. The theme for this meeting will be "Youth, Your Responsibility and Mine."

As fifth vice president of the Ohio State P. T. A., Superintendent O. E. Hill reported on the objectives of his work. Another report was given by R. W. Patterson, president of the council, on the P. T. A. study meetings which are being sponsored by the council.

Leaders of the various P. T. A. units gave reports. Mrs. Russell Smith reported that the P. T. A. at the North school held a benefit party in February and that the men will have charge of the March meeting. She also stated that a social room and kitchen is now being constructed at the building. Progress of the Cub Pack at the building was related by Edward Garverick. For the South school, Mrs. C. B. FINDING WORLD'S TONIC MARKED HIS LUCKY DAY

Became Clock Watcher—Not Equal To His Job Through Poor Health

Advises Constipated Stomach Sufferers "Don't Fail To Try"

Many men and women workers often see others advanced over their heads to better paying jobs while they have to be content and even thankful to hold any kind of job because physical problems hold them back. Mr. Fred Braun of 857 Highland St., Massillon, Ohio makes World's Tonic a paying investment in dollar earning power as he explains his new viewpoint:

"It's no fun watching the other fellow always getting the plums and worse yet when you discover it's your own fault. I blame myself because I let constipation get such a hold on me. Sure, I tried a lot of strong laxatives but these left results as bad or worse I had nervous headaches, was often bilious and dizzy. I was afraid to risk an examination for high blood pressure or heart trouble but bending over at work would make blood rush to my head, cause dizziness and cloud my vision. I'd have terrible pains across my back and had to get up often at night. I was lazy, sluggish and sniff all the time and had a yellow, sallow appearance which I blamed on my liver. Frankly, I felt lucky to even hold my job and would have welcomed something easier. I was ashamed to go anywhere because of ugly blotches, pimples and rash-like things that would break out on my skin.

"I'd read a lot of things about World's Tonic in the local paper and started using it a short time ago. The first result was unbelievably speedy relief from that frightful constipation Pains, aches, dizzy spells and many other discouraging things stopped bothering me in short order. I don't even want to think about these things any more. I just want to say, 'World's Tonic is remarkable and by all means try it if you are worried as I was.' Now instead of clock watching, I'm ready and watching for opportunity."

Valuable alkalines with roots and herbs compound, pleasant tasting and a mild diuretic to the kidneys, are all in World's Tonic.

World's Tonic is for sale at Central and all other modern Drug Stores.—Adv. (E 58)

Blame Ill Health And Worry In Three Deaths

Chief and Coroner Agree on Murder-Suicide Verdict; Insurance Agent, Wife and Daughter, Found In Home With Throats Cut, Dead 24 Hours.

had been ransacked and a container with three keys taken from his car.

Bates said that Mrs. James Rettig, 258½ South Main street, who keeps her machine in the same garage, also reported that her car had been ransacked but nothing was missing.

"I'm of the opinion that it was only some youths who were looking for something of value," Bates said. "Finding the keys in the car they took them because they were attracted by the case."

It was learned that Woerth had talked to a close friend while he was downtown last Saturday and told him he was "very melancholy."

Police said they found a sandwich which Woerth had brought home from the restaurant his brother, Louis, operates on South Diamond street, Monday night, still unwrapped, on a kitchen table.

E. C. Fuller, police identification expert, last night took numerous photographs at the scene of the slayings and then fingerprinted Woerth at the mortuary last night.

He said that he would make a minute examination of the murder and suicide weapons today in an effort to determine positively that Woerth had wielded them.

Police also took samples of each victim's blood which they hope to be able to match with that found on the stairs and kitchen floor to definitely establish which of the persons were murdered first.

Accosts Wife In Basement.

Police said they believed that Woerth went to the basement where he accosted his wife as she started through a door in a partition that separated the furnace room from the rest of the cellar.

Mrs. Woerth, they said, was struck by the same instrument that was used in the slaying of the daughter. Her skull was fractured. There was a deep wound in the center of her forehead.

Woerth, then in a maniacal fury of what police believe to have been a temporary fit of insanity, slashed his wife's throat as she lay on the concrete floor.

Bloody footprints upon the basement stairs and in the kitchen led police to theorize that Woerth went to a pantry off the kitchen and sharpened the knife to a razor edge.

Police said a small knife sharpener had been taken from a cabinet drawer and the knife apparently sharpened. Evidence of this was noted in that blood was in the drawer and on the handle and over the sharpener.

Found Near Wife's Body.

Woerth was believed to have then retraced his steps to the basement where he slashed his own throat and fell on his back within 10 feet of his wife's body.

Chief Bates said that the blood-stained knife and a two-pound mechanics hammer, believed to have been used by Woerth to murder his wife and daughter, was lying on the floor close to his body."

"I think there is little doubt but that it is a clear case of double murder and suicide," Bates said.

He discounted a robbery or grudge motive because nothing in the house had been ransacked. He said that the girl had a wrist watch on when her body was found and that Woerth had several bills in a purse in his pocket. He said he knew of no enemies which Woerth might have had.

Chief Blames Worry.

"I feel sure that the man was so distraught with worry that something drove him to the act," the chief said.

He pointed out that while both the mother and daughter had suffered blows on the head, that examination of Woerth's skull showed no injury. This, he explained led him to believe that Woerth was responsible for the slayings.

Police based their theory further on findings made by Coroner Winbigler who examined the bodies at the Geiger funeral home last night.

Dr. Winbigler said the three had been dead at least 24 hours. He reported that examination of the bodies showed that both women had been struck on the head with a blunt instrument, probably the hammer found in the basement which had fractured their skulls.

"This alone would have been enough to kill either one of them," he said.

He said that the blow that struck Mrs. Woerth had pierced the skull just below the hairline on the forehead, while the girl suffered a similar fracture at the base of the brain.

"The girl was slashed below the left ear from the front to the spinal column," Dr. Winbigler said, "while both Mr. and Mrs. Woerth were cut from ear to ear."

He explained that the heavy thrust of the keen-edged blade had all but decapitated both parents.

The coroner added that it had not yet been definitely established when any of the three had been last seen although it was understood that relatives of the family had talked to Woerth and his daughter early Monday evening.

Lights In House Off.

He pointed out that the slayings could have occurred any time after that, but it appeared that they had taken place during the daylight hours since none of the electric lights in the house were on when police arrived.

Police said that Woerth had been with a brother, Louis, a Mansfield merchant, late Monday afternoon, but had left him at about 6 p. m. to go to his home.

They said they were told by a relative of the family the daughter had talked to her aunt, Miss Adelaide Woerth, on the telephone later in the evening.

Baer, 76, who lives across the street, told Detective Lee Remy how he had made the discovery which had led to finding the first of the three bodies.

Baer said that he had called at the Woerth home, intending to clean the snow from the sidewalks, knowing that members of the family had been in poor health.

Finds Door Ajar.

"I noticed the newspapers on the porch and that the door was slightly ajar and I thought there was something funny when no one answered the doorbell," Baer related.

He said that he observed that the papers were Tuesday and Wednesday's issues and put them in the living room and closed the door.

"I went back home and kept thinking about it," he added. "Finally I told my wife and she suggested that we call Mr. Herrold who lives next door to Woerth."

Herrold, who also was present when police questioned neighbors, explained that he had called the Woerth home on the telephone and had received no answer.

He said he then summoned Mr. Woerth's sister, Adelaide, from her home at 178 South Diamond street.

Herrold and Baer then followed Miss Woerth into the house through the back door which was found unlocked. The front door had locked when Baer had pulled it shut.

Both men accompanied Miss Woerth to the second floor where they found the girl's body in bed.

Herrold called police who located the other two bodies in the basement.

John Michael Woerth was born Sept. 22, 1878 in Cincinnati and came to Mansfield about 50 years ago. He was the son of George and Mary Klein Woerth, who with the family followed their son to Mansfield a few months later.

In 1913-14 he served as Richland county recorder and when Henry G. Brunner took office as mayor of Mansfield, Mr. Woerth was named superintendent of the city water department, serving throughout practically all of Brunner's three terms.

For the past eight years he had been in the insurance business. At a meeting of insurance men this week, it was remarked that this was the first meeting he had missed.

On Thanksgiving day of 1909, Mr. Woerth and Miss Grace Gimble were married in St. Peter's Catholic church. Loretta Elizabeth, who was born Dec. 7, 1911, was their only child. She attended St. Peter's school and after finishing there continued her schooling under a private governess and graduated from Mansfield Senior high school.

Active At Church.

Mr. Woerth was active in the work of St. Peter's church and was affiliated with the Knights of Columbus, which he had served as grand knight for three terms, and the Holy Name society. Fraternally, he also was a life member of the Eagles lodge.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mary Woerth; three brothers, George H., Louis A., and Joseph B.; two sisters, Adelaide C., and Theresa M. Woerth, all of Mansfield.

Mrs. Woerth was born Mar. 17, 1874, and also was active in church organizations. She was a member of the Isabella club, Daughters of Isabella and the Catholic Ladies of Columbia. She leaves no immediate relatives, except nieces and nephews, among them Russell Gimble, director of the Friendly House.

Loretta had been employed at the Mansfield Telephone company for about five years, resigning a year ago because of ill health.

Ill health had dogged the family for years. Mrs. Woerth suffered from a chronic organic ailment and Mr. Woerth was afflicted with a stomach ailment for at least six years.

The bodies were removed to the Geiger funeral home where friends may call after 10 a. m., Friday.

Funeral arrangements have been tentatively set for Saturday morning.

Members of the Daughters of Isabella and the Catholic Ladies of Columbia, of which Mrs Woerth was a member, will meet at 8 p. m. Friday at the funeral home to pay their last respects.

The Knights of Columbus, of which Mr. Woerth was a member, will say the prayers for the dead at 8:30 p. m.

TRAGEDY STUNS NEIGHBORHOOD

'It Could Have Been Anyone But John,' They Say as They Hear of Deaths.

kept milk and fresh meat in the Wampfler refrigerator.

"I saw Mr. Woerth taking down her clothesline in the back yard Monday night, and he looked terribly bad, so pale and worried," Mrs. Wampfler added.

On the other side of the house of tragedy, Will G. Herrold, a veteran insurance man, like Woerth, was stunned by the triple deaths.

"I knew John Woerth for about 25 years—why, I sold him the lot on which he built his house 24 years ago," Herrold said.

"We hadn't seen much of each other recently, though, and I guess the last time I talked with him was just before Christmas. They were fine neighbors, but their illness caused them to stay at home more lately.

"It was about three years ago that John had a bad spell, and I won't forget how Loretta ran over here one night to have us call a doctor," Herrold related. "They thought he would die then."

While her husband talked, Mrs. Herrold answered countless telephone calls from friends of the Woerth family who wanted to know details of the tragedy.

Telephones jangled in every other home in the vicinity, indicating how rapidly the news had spread.

Across Lexington avenue from the Woerth home, W. F. Baer, whose investigation led to the finding of the bodies, said: "They were just good everyday people. Mr. and Mrs. Woerth were over here last Friday night and they seemed as happy as ever then."

Mrs. Baer added her comment on the tragedy: "It just can't be. It's the worst thing I've ever heard of." Both of them tried vainly to keep back tears as they talked.

She recalled that Mrs. Woerth teased her husband when they were visiting Friday night in the Baer home.

"He (Mr. Woerth) was complaining about his illness, and then Mrs. Woerth said: 'Well, it just goes to show that you men can't take it like we women can.'"

Back across the street, Mrs. Wampfler shuddered as she looked into the darkness that had enveloped the home that a scant hour before had been filled with activity.

"There was that awful darkness over there last night, too," she said. "But of course I thought they were away from home."

She shuddered as she recalled how she had looked out of her kitchen window shortly after the bodies were found and saw the form of her closest neighbor on the basement floor.

"They were a fine family," Wampfler said. John wouldn't even kill a chicken when his wife wanted one for Sunday dinner. I used to see him tinkering around in the basement at 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning. He had a little workshop down there.

"I guess we don't think much about such things as this when we read about them in the papers, but when it comes right to us like this, we begin to realize what it means," he added

Will-o'-the Wisp Gang and $200,000 Loot Evade Police

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—(INS)—Police moved in confused circles today in their search for the will-o'-the-wisp bandit gang that vanished after taking about $200,000 worth of cash and jewels from the swanky Blackstone hotel vaults early yesterday.

Investigators said the five robbers had apparently planned their getaway with the same care they used in looting the strong boxes.

They smashed open only 14 of the 100 or more boxes in the vault and skipped far down the line to one belonging to Mrs. Antonio Marko of New York, widow of a wealthy fuel company executive, who reported a loss of $75,000 in gems.

It was this seemingly intimate knowledge of the locations of the safe deposit boxes and their contents that provided investigators with their best clue.

It was almost certain, they said, that the bandits had some inside knowledge of the setup, and the lists of former employes were scanned to determine if any might have tipped off the gang.

CAT FIRE HERO

NEW ALBANY, Ind.—(AP)—Henry Kenten's kitten saved six sleeping apartment dwellers from possible death.

The apartment occupants fled to safety.

To Relieve BABY'S HEAD COLD Misery

DO THIS: Massage his throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub and tuck him into bed. Next, put a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water; place a newspaper or sheet over the child's head like a tent, covering the bowl too, so the medicated vapors can be inhaled for several minutes. This treatment loosens phlegm—clears air-passages—checks tendency to cough—relieves local congestion. Long after he relaxes into peaceful sleep, VapoRub's poultice-and-vapor action is still bringing relief—and you can get a good night's rest too.

CONNEAUT—(AP)—Peter L. Sowle, towing a new automobile to the east, heard a noise in the back of his own car.

The South Bend, Ind., man said when he investigated, he found a shabbily-dressed dead man slumped on the floor. Coroner C. C. Webster identified the man from cards found in the clothes as Vernon H. Busher, 27, of Syracuse, N. Y.

Sowle said the man probably entered his automobile when he stopped in Cleveland for lunch yesterday. Coroner Webster indicated Busher died either of a heart attack or carbon monoxide poisoning.

Book of the Week

"MY DAY IN COURT," by Arthur Train; (Scribners: $3.50).

SHOULD you, by chance, decide to read Arthur Train's "My Day In Court" you will be wise to take your alarm clock to your library and set it for whatever time you want to stop. Otherwise nobody could guess when you might come up for air.

This book is not an autobiography, although it is about Mr. Train's two careers—the first as a lawyer, the second as a writer. He has carefully taken out most of the genealogical detaail, tells almost nothing about the times he went swimming as a boy, his victories for old Harvard, his courtships, and so on. He wants to say several thousand things about his two obsessions, and he does, very amusingly.

He was a lawyer before he was a writer, but for several years the two careers overlapped. To a certain extent they still do, for personal experience indicates that a lawyer never completely abandons his profession. And as anybody knows who knows Mr. Tutt, Train's fortunately imperishable character, those years at the bar furnished most of the author's literary material, and as such they are most important.

The curious thing is that the legal career was, Train writes, not particularly welcome in the first place, and the most romantic part of it was pure happenstance. He always felt an impulse to write; in the Boston circle in which his family moved, however, people's spines curled at the thought of a literary career. His father was an attorney; therefore the son became one.

The son went to New York, unhappily occupied a desk on an air well. One day he read that a shakeup in municipal affairs had put a reformer in as district attorney. The idea of serving under Eugene A. Philbin was so attractive to the young Bostonese that he left a sickbed and since Pilbin's staff was full, volunteered to work for nothing and was accepted. He was added to the payroll after a couple of months and the years under Philbin and Jerome are the basis of the unique literary career.

The story of this dual career is a mine of gentle humor, wise asides, tolerance and good sense.—by J. S.

What could be more exciting, when one is seven and lives in Wisconsin, than a ride in a big bobsled, filled with hay. And, at the end of the ride, a warm farmhouse, and lots of children to pull candy and pop corn. All this happens to Wee Brigit O'Toole in the book of the same name, by Ruth and Richard Holberg. Mitty and Mr. Syrup are in the story, too. The book has many illustrations in black and white colors by the authors.

Another new book for children about the same age, is "The Big Goose and the Little White Duck" by Meindert DeJong. This is a collection of stories about a goose and his pal, a little white duck, and how Grandpa wanted to eat the goose for his 88th birthday, and what happened to change his mind

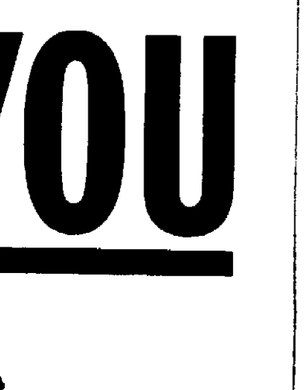
Small Wonder Local Lady Was Often Cross and Jumpy

Had suffered long time from constipation which caused indigestion, nervousness, headaches, backache and other troubles. Feels grand now, gives all credit to Vendol.



MRS. EDWARD H. SPIESS

"I never thought any medicine could change my feelings so much in such a short time as a few bottles of Vendol have done," said Mrs. Edward H. Spiess, residing on Route 5, Mansfield, to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store where people return daily to tell him how this mixture of Nature's Roots and Herbs with Alkalines has done them so much good.

Vendol has helped many people right here in this city and nearby towns, so why not give it a chance to help you, too? Come to Central Drug Store, Cor. Main & 4th Sts., ask for the Vendol Man, and learn all about it. Most all leading druggists sell it.

"I had been troubled a long time with constipation which kept me taking laxatives almost every night and it was this condition that brought on the other troubles that worried me almost daily.

"I had a backache that made it almost torture for me to bend over and even more difficult to straighten up again; my food simply wouldn't digest properly, but formed bloating gas and made me feel as though I were going to lose the meal entirely; my nerves were in a state that kept me feeling jumpy and cross during the day and made sleep almost impossible at night, and I'd usually wake up feeling tired, wornout and sluggish, and often with a bad headache.

"I have found Vendol to act differently from anything I had tried before and it proved to be exactly what I needed. It promoted almost immediate bowel action, the best, most complete and satisfying I had enjoyed in a long time, then my improvement was wonderful in many ways.

"I now have a good appetite, nothing I eat disagrees with my stomach, never feel bloated, short of breath or have a lump in my throat. I get to sleep as soon as I retire and awaken feeling rested and refreshed without a headache, dizzy feeling or backache; I never feel jumpy nor cross any more and I have Vendol to thank for all this grand change. I'm sure if Vendol did all this for me, it can help anyone who is willing to give it a fair trial."

Press Senate Action on Arms Bill Approved By House

LEADERS SEEK EARLY ACTION IN COMMITTEE

Plan to Conclude Inquiry Into Plane Sales to Get Defense Program on Floor.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The senate military committee sought today to clear the way for quick action on President Roosevelt's defense program by winding up its stormy investigation of the sale of American-made warplanes to France.

The committee's immediate concern appeared to be to let the country know whether a representative of the French air ministry was properly aboard a new bombing plane which crashed recently on the west coast.

Secretaries Recalled.

Having looked into the matter once under a self-imposed pledge of secrecy, it called Secretaries Morgenthau and Woodring back to the capitol to have them restate parts of their testimony "on the record."

Testimony taken yesterday from army officials was being prepared for publication. It was understood to deal chiefly with a joint army-navy rule of last August barring agents of foreign governments from planes destined for military use.

Meanwhile, there were these other developments in the national defense-foreign affairs situation:

1. The house yesterday passed, 367 to 15, the bulk of President Roosevelt's $552,000,000 defense program. The bill authorizes $300,000,000 for air defenses, including 3,000 new army planes, $23,750,000 for Panama canal defenses, and $34,500,000 for "educational orders" to private manufacturers. It now goes to the sente.

2. Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) said the military committee at his request had agreed to call in Hugh Wilson, ambassador to Germany, for a report on conditions in Europe. Bridges said he had a "suspicion" that Wilson's attitude was less pessimistic than that expressed recently by Joseph P. Kennedy and William C. Bullitt, ambassadors to London and Paris, respectively.

3. Senator Clark (D., Mo.) appealed in a radio address for legislation to "tax the profits out of war" and for more stringent neutrality laws.

4. Senator Barbour (R., N. J.) proposed mandatory prison sentences for persons convicted of peacetime espionage or sabotage.

Chairman Sheppard (D., Tex.) said the army expansion bill would go before the senate military committee tomorrow morning. The measure passed the house after Democratic Leader Rayburn declared that "conditions in Europe are more volcanic today than in the early part of 1914."

CARDINALS HEAR HITLER'S ENVOY

Ambassador Says New Pontiff to Play Important Part in 'New World' Development.

(By Associated Press)

VATICAN CITY—Reichsfuehrer Hitler's ambassador to the Holy See informed the college of cardinals today that the new Pope they are to choose would play an important role in the development of a new world.

The ambassador, Diego Von Bergen, spoke when he led the diplomatic corps, of which he is dean, to call upon the cardinals for formal presentation of consolences on the death of Pope Pius XI.

He expresed the hope that the new world he mentioned would be built peacefully "on the ruins of the past."

He reminded the cardinals of their responsibility in naming a pontiff who would guide humanity through "tempestuous and fearful anxiety."

Cardinal Pignatelli Di Belmonte, head of the college, replied to his address.

There were 40 cardinals at the congregation today, the largest number since the death of Pius last Friday.

The sound of hammer and saw rang in the papal palace as workmen hurried their preparation of the cells, assembly hall and kitchens which will be the locked domain of cardinals during the conclave to elect a new pope.

HOPKINS, MURPHY SEEK TO HEAL CONGRESS-WHITE HOUSE BREACH

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt's newest cabinet members—Harry L. Hopkins and Frank Murphy—were reported by usually well-informed persons today to be working for harmony between the White House and dissident Democratic senators.

Hopkins and Murphy, it was said, are concerned lest differences in Democratic ranks bring a Republican victory in 1940.

Because Hopkins is a close White House adviser and also is friendly with many opposition senators, some politicians expressed belief he might go far toward finding a common ground for divergent party factions.

Murphy's first effort toward party harmony, authoritative reports said, may be a recommendation that the chief executive appoint Harold M. Stephens of Utah to succeed the retired Justice Brandeis on the supreme court.

Stephens now is a member of the federal court of appeals for the District of Columbia. Several western senators have been urging that a man from their section be named.

As attorney general, Murphy will report on the qualifications of those recommended for the court vacancy. He has told some senators, it was learned, that he is favorably inclined toward Stephens.

The party differences were emphasized today when three western senators disclosed they would make no recommendations for the high court appointment.

"Why make any?" asked Senator Clark (D., Mo.) "The president never has paid any attention to recommendations."

Senator Truman (D., Mo.) voiced a similar opinion, saying: "I go on the theory that it doesn't make any difference who is recommended. The president will appoint who he wants to anyway. He always has."

EX-CLERK DIES

H. D. Ackerman Was Retired Railway Mail Employe.

Howard D. Ackerman of 530 West Fourth street, a retired railway mail clerk, died at his home today after a brief illness.

Mr. Ackerman, who retired from the railway service a year and a half ago, was born in Knox county, but had been a resident of this city 35 years, coming here from Galion.

His wife, Stella; a son, Franklin; a sister, Mrs. Lena Strang, and a grand daughter, all of this city, survive. He was a member of the Railway Postal Clerks association.

Services will be held at the Finefrock funeral home at 2:30 p. m. Saturday in charge of Carl Cromer of the First Church of Christ Scientist, with burial in the Memorial park cemetery.

CLEVELAND MAN SHOOTS SELF AS SERVICES END

Slays Wife Who Threatened to Get Divorce; Note Declares 'This Only Way Out.'

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND—Benedict A. Jender, sought by police in connection with the slaying of his estranged wife, shot and killed himself in the front pew of downtown St. John's cathedral today after attending mass, Coroner Samuel R. Gerber reported.

Joseph A. Krizman, an attorney worshipping nearby, said Jender knelt throughout the service and remained in the pew after the Catholic priest, Rev. William B. Gallagher, retired to the sacristy. Then, Krizman said, a shot sounded and he discovered Jender slumped on the floor, a revolver near his hand.

Will Found In Pocket.

Coroner Gerber disclosed a scribbled will in the dead man's pocket concluded: "God have mercy on my soul. This is the only way out."

Mrs. Jender was shot to death yesterday at the home of Frank Skowronski where she and a 13-year-old daughter, Florence, have lived since last November.

Skowronski, who witnessed the shooting, told authorities Jender fired at his wife three times after she told him she planned obtaining a divorce. The child, Skowronski said, stood near her mother during the affray, narrowly escaping death herself as she sought to shield her parent. Dr. Gerber pronounced Mrs. Jender's death murder.

A 38-year-old WPA worker, Jender ran from the house following the shooting. Police, attempting to arrest him, said they traced him to several beer taverns but in each case arrived too late.

After a long round of drinking he apparently walked the streets until morning, police said, indicating they believed he planned to kill himself after learning from a morning newspaper his wife, 29, had died. He had a newspaper in his pocket.

Authorities declined to divulge the full contents of the note found in Jender's pocket, but said it left his property to his daughter.

CLEAR OFFICER

Policeman Kills Gunman Just as Grand Jury Indicts Him.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—The fatal shooting of Richard Sells, 24, who died almost at the instant he was indicted for shooting to kill, was ruled justifiable homicide by the Cleveland police prosecutor's office today.

Sells was shot by Detective Sergeant Patrick Ryan, from whom he fled when the police car in which they were riding was stopped in a traffic jam. After running through an east side apartment building, Sells had jumped from a second-floor back porch when Ryan fired the shot that struck him in the head and caused his instant death.

The indictment against Sells was returned by the Mahoning county grand jury at Youngstown at almost the same time yesterday afternoon that he died.

FAIR ENOUGH!

What Could Be Done to Make Press of America Any Better Than It Is?

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—So, after all this discussion, we come to the question, "What kind of press would you substitute for the privately owned American press?"

Papers operated by political parties would not be objective or impartial. We know that from experience, and from the nature of political speeches. Politicians never give the opposition credit for any virtues, achievements or good intentions, or admit faults or errors in their own ranks. That is just the way of politics. It is like "lawing" in the court. A lawyer in court doesn't call the attention of the jury to the merits of the other side, or flaws in his own arguments.

So, partisan political papers might have good funnies and bridge lessons and all such package goods, but they would be one-sided in both news and editorial opinion. They would be much more one-sided than the most prejudiced of the privately owned papers, because the worst of these sheets make an occasional stab at being fair, and the worst are very few in number.

Or, suppose we had a censored and state-subsidized press, such as the Communists and "axis" nations have and propose for this country. The Communist and "axis" methods are alike, and anyone who thinks the American papers are unfair in their treatment of news and their editorial interpretation, ought to dig into a pile of that kind of press. They shoot people for expressing contrary views, or, in Germany, chop their heads off.

Or we can have the cat-and-dog type of press that clutters the stands in France, and used to be seen in Spain and Prague. In Prague, commercial presses were rented impartially, and the same press that kicked out a Red paper one hour might tear off a run for a Nazi sheet as the next job. The French press is just terrible; it is notoriously corrupt.

Even in this country, most editors know what pressure is, and dread it. Groups are forever threatening boycotts if their interests are not promoted, or if their adversaries are given a fair deal. A completely fair man may be ruined by boycotts from all sides, and he is always buttering and placating arrogant spokesmen who ought to be kicked downstairs and told to mind their own business. But, if he doesn't use salve, it's his neck. Frequently, the very people who squawk about bias in the press demand bias in the treatment of their own interests. I think Harold Ickes fits this description.

I am afraid, though, that the newspaper business in this country is in for a bad time. Mr. Roosevelt and several other New Dealers have a hate on for the American press, and papers are dropping dead here and there in the country right along, and are not being replaced. Taxes and costs are high, and if the New Deal ever gets by with a scheme to disallow the deduction of advertising appropriations from the incomes of big advertisers, it will be much worse. They will abandon their advertising, or reduce it to such small volume that most of the press will be starved to death.

Why they want to kill our press, or what they intend to substitute for it they have never told us, and I can't guess, but I can tell you that, whatever it is, it won't be as good as the press of today.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It's halt-calling time on: Racetrack pictures in which the hero's horse wins because somebody or other rides around the track playing or singing the nag's favorite song, such as "Jeepers Creepers" in "Going Places."

Title capitalizing on "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," such as "Mr. Boggs Buys a Barrel," etc. Latest is "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," which is excusable, however, as it's to be made by Capra, who did "Deeds" and maybe with Gary Cooper, who was Deeds.

The excessive bad manners of such as the Dead End Kids, Little Tough Guys, et al., which are supposed to indicate how tough and cute the smack-and-hit boys are. (The Dead Enders are toning themselves down in "Hell's Kitchen," which indicates the producers have heeded the parental protests.)

Those embarrassing scenes in which movie moppets pray out loud, palms joined, beside their invariably tiny trundle beds. (But maybe you like 'em, huh?)

Scenes in which hero and heroine argue about going, say, to the opera, with hero firmly declining in the fade-out, with the fade-in showing hero and heroine at the opera. (This was great stuff when Lubitsch, I believe, first used it.)

* * *

Scenes in which hero (or heroine) says, "But-darling-don't-you-understand?" (Especially aggravating when if person addressed were anything but a first-class dope he'd have understood all the time—and just as clearly as the audience which is five reels ahead of the plot.)

Humor which springs from the alleged affinity between canines and trees. (Oh, yes, this still crops up occasionally.)

Those postscriptual eulogies in which an oratorical actor tells the audience just why Jesse James or Whoever will live forever in the hearts of his countrymen. (They liked it so well as a tag to "Kentucky" that they did it again in "Jesse James," which should be funny when they get on the same double bill.)

"Historical" dramas in which fiction, less gripping than fact, but more easily formularized into boy-meets-girl grooves, runs wild with occasional dashes into what really happened. (Jesse's granddaughter, Jo Frances James, was in the hospital last week—but I'm sure it wasn't directly a result of seeing "Jesse James.")

Scenes (in hospital pictures) wherein surgeons and assistants hover over operating tables and mutter in code about Temperature, Pulse, Anesthetic, etc., the while their faces register alarm over the invisible patients. (And I don't mean they should make the patient's wound visible, either, which is the next step if they keep it up.)

Sudden storms to keep hero and heroine together in the mountain cabin, thus Compromising them. (Last time this one showed its white-whiskered face, in my recollection, was in "Road to Reno," but you can't tell when it'll bob up again.)

And what are your nominations?

He's In Love After Sixth Date

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I've known a certain girl since we went to high school, but we never went together until after we graduated, and now I find myself in love after taking her out about six times. I hesitate to tell her of my feelings for her, and I wouldn't dare to kiss her for fear she would think I am looking for petting. I know she wouldn't tolerate that stuff.

Other girls don't interest me one bit, although I've taken them out to prove that it isn't a case of infatuation. I'm always wishing that the girl with whom I happen to be might be the one whom I love. So far she has never refused me a date, so I think she must like me a little. Please give me some advice through your column.

HOPEFUL.

You seem to stand quite in awe of the friend, and I'd advise you to turn about and take the initiative. Don't be afraid to show her that you care. You might even tell her so. After all, it's a good idea to know at once if the girl really doesn't care for you. Some girls are so proud they'd rather die than let a man know how much they think of him before he makes the first sign.

You have every reason to hope for luck in your affair, since the girl never refuses a date with you.

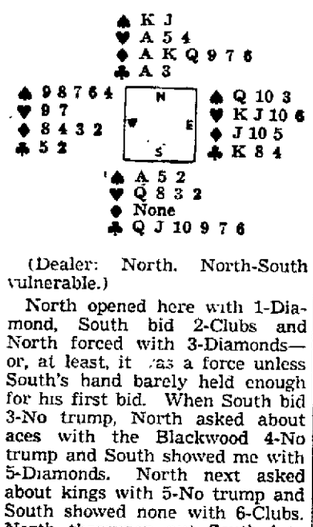
"The Authority on Authorities"

READ THE ROAD SIGNS

Any efficient automobile driver reads the road signs, in order to keep out of trouble. It is the same in selecting the opening lead against the opponents' contract.

Sometimes the lead which is indicated as the best will not defeat the contract, whereas the apparently worst possible lead will.

But in the long run it will pay to observe the logic of the situation as pointed by the bidding and by the cards you hold yourself.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North opened here with 1-Diamond, South bid 2-Clubs and North forced with 3-Diamonds—or, at least, it was a force unless South's hand barely held enough for his first bid. When South bid 3-No trump, North asked about aces with the Blackwood 4-No trump and South showed me with 5-Diamonds. North next asked about kings with 5-No trump and South showed none with 6-Clubs. North thereupon put South into 6-No trump.

Sound logic for West would be about as follows: My own hand is worthless, so I should lead what figures to be the best help to my partner in setting this contract. The opponents' suits of diamonds and clubs are out of the question. My own spades are hopeless. I must lead a heart.

Had West done that the contract would have been set. For East would have taken one trick in hearts and one in clubs. But West didn't. He led the fourth-best of his own suit, spades. The declarer won it in dummy, led a club, and so lost only one trick, to the club K, as the diamond suit set up on a lucky break.

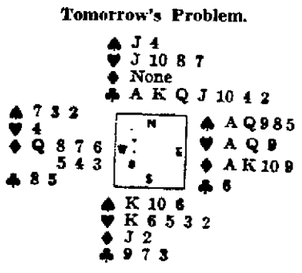
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

On this deal, with each side seeming to have a major suit game, what is the best bidding?

To remove the cloudiness which comes over highly polished furniture wash it with a sponge and tepid water and rub it dry with a wet chamois wring out of cold water. A dry chamois streaks the surface and does not remove the blur.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, Feb. 17.

A final stimulus to all the forces and faculties is assured on this day, according to the lunar and mutual aspects. There is promise of much high pressure salesmanship, with important projects and constructive plans to be put over with energy and initiative. This will attract the solid support of the influential and financially powerful, but in all be alert to some cunning or tricky involvements. Promotion and preferment also react on the social and domestic life, with personal popularity and prestige.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves working at high tension, with all the faculties and forces keyed up to splendid creative ability, encouraged by the recognition and ready support of those in high places. And while meritorious projects should thrive, at the same time there are loopholes for subtle or clever entanglements to be guarded against. Social and private affiliations partake of the good fortune and enhanced popularity.

A child born on this day may have much ability, force and initiative, and may attract the recognition and friendly support of those in power and influence. Its creative faculties and high ambitions assure it position in social as well as business circles.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Dollars to doughnuts. I know what that means," she said, then stopped short and looked at me mischievously.

"But I don't think I'm going to tell you, now," she said. "It would spoil a rare joke. I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll get three pieces of paper, and three pencils. Then each one of us will write down what she thinks he means by this visit. We'll seal 'em up and put them in a box in your desk. Then when we find out what it's all about, we'll open the box, compare notes and the ones who lose will have to buy the win-nah a dinnah. Is it a go?"

"It is with me, Mary," I told her.

"How about you, Miss Whitlock," Mary turned to the nurse.

"I'd love to play," Miss Whitlock said, smiling, and in another two minutes our predictions, evidently told in a sentence or two apiece, were written, sealed and deposited in my desk.

"There!" Mary pirouetted around the room and came to a halt in front of my chair. "Want to bet something on the side that I have the right answer?"

"Your uncle would say that you're a glutton for punishment," I told her, smiling. "And I really don't think I ought to encourage you in your mania for gambling. I think we'll let the original agreement suffice."

She turned her eyes up and spread her hands in an exaggerated gesture.

"That's what it is to have a Puritan aunt," she mourned to the universe at large. Then she gave me a forgiving gamin laugh which turned into a suppressed shriek as a knock sounded on the door.

"Do you suppose he's come back again?" she whispered, and her twitching hands betrayed the toll which rehearsing for her father-in-law had taken of her nerves.

"No, I don't suppose anything of the kind," I said with purposeful tartness, for I saw that she needed a bracing tonic, not sympathy, and Miss Whitlock struck in with a common sense comment which quieted Mary's incipient hysteria immediately.

"No doubt it's the boy with the menu," she said. "Shall I answer the door and let him in?"

"Please," I answered, and she went swiftly to the door. I saw Mary's eyes following her tensely, and was relieved indeed when as the nurse threw open the door, the uniformed boy handed her the dinner menu, and hurried back to his elevator car.

"I hope you both are as hungry as I am," Miss Whitlock said, and I saw that she purposely was striking a practical note. "I hate to appear the only greedy one."

"Don't worry!" I told her, playing up. "I'm ravenously hungry. Is there anything good for dinner?"

"He brought three of these things," she said. "The paper isn't very thick, and I didn't notice until just now. We can choose our eats at our leisure."

She handed one of the cards to me, and one to Mary, and for several minutes we lingered over them, choosing the items that struck our fancy.

Mary was the first to finish her card, and as she laid it on the table beside her, she gave a little laugh.

"Nothing like the prospect of good food to drive away the jitters, is there?" she queried in her normal tones.

Lenten Dishes Next On List

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

IT'S NOT A BIT too soon to give a thought to Lenten dishes. The good cook can make meatless dishes as delightful and satisfying as any, while the indifferent, unimaginative cook can offer only a procession of dull egg dishes or soggy spaghetti. The good cook adds spices and savory herbs to pep up her recipes, and balances pastes, cheese, eggs and fish with delightful salads. The recipes offered today are especially selected with emphasis on Lent but they should find a welcome place right through the year.

Good Luncheon Dish.

Molded Egg Noodles with creamed eggs is another good lunch or supper dish. One package wide egg noodles, three tablespoons flour, one teaspoon onion salt, four to six eggs, one teaspoon salt, two cups milk, four tablespoons butter, one-quarter teaspoon pepper and one tablespoon fine herbs or savory will serve six. Cook noodles in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and put in well-greased top of double boiler. Let stand over hot water until needed. Hard cook the eggs. Melt butter, stir in flour and seasonings and, when well-blended, add the milk slowly. Stir over low fire until thick and smooth. Cut hard-boiled eggs in quarters. Unmold egg noodles in center of hot platter. Arrange sauce around noodles and arrange eggs on sauce. Serve immediately.

Marinated Fried Fish is a Portuguese specialty that may interest our readers. It requires two pounds filet fish cut in individual portions, one cup stock, two tablespoons onion salt, four peppercorns, one tablespoon chopped onion, one teaspoon chopped parsley, two tablespoons lemon juice, one-half clove of garlic (crushed), one-eighths teaspoon nutmeg, one crushed bay leaf, teaspoon salt and four tablespoons olive oil.

To make the dressing: Mix together the oil, onion, salt, lemon juice, bay leaf, garlic, peppercorns and salt. Dip the fish in this mixture and then place in bowl and cover with the rest of mixture. Marinate for three hours. Lift out fish, drain and dry. Strain the sauce. Fry fish in butter or other shortening, drain and cool on brown paper. Mix the dressing with the stock and heat, adding onion and parsley. Cool and serve over fish.

Strained honey that has been heated a little makes a delicious topping for waffles, pancakes, biscuits, rolls, muffins and other hot breads. The honey may be poured from a small pitcher.

BRITAIN BREAKS SCHOOL CASTE SWAY IN ARMY

Youths Lacking Social Background Can Be Presented Commissions Now.

(By United Press)

LONDON—The "old school tie" is gradually disappearing from the British Army and grammar school boys now have the opportunity to become officers.

That's what novelist "Ian Hay"—whose real name is Major-Gen. John Hay Beith and job that of publicity agent for the army—told newspapermen in an interview.

"This constitutes something like a revolution in army methods," he said, "and believe me, it has not been brought about without bitter opposition from the more old-fashioned spirits in the War Office.

"There are still difficulties and prejudices to be overcome by what used to be called the ranker-officer and it is well known that the chief difficulty is made not by his fellow-officers, but by the men he commands.

System Working.

"But the democratic principle has been accepted and it is in working order.

"The army wants good young officers and it does not in the least care where they come from. A boy who shows the right qualities of leadership is never going to be turned down for lack of a particular school background.

"A boy of the right type can go to Woolwich or Sandhurst without passing the special entrance examination at all, if he has passed the Higher Certificate.

"The army is prepared to pay part, or even the whole cost of his Woolwich or Sandhurst training, according to his parent's means—and the cost is $500 a term.

"If the parents confidentially disclose their income, the War Office will respond by paying all that the parents cannot afford, even if they can afford nothing at all.

$100 Gratuity Added.

"The cadet not only will get his fees and his living expenses paid, but the cost of his clothes, his games subscriptions, his pocket money and even, at the end of his training, a gratuity of $100 to enable him to buy a dress suit and that sort of thing.

"Besides this, there is another democratic scheme of entry to commissioned rank, which has just been put into operation.

"The right sort of young man can enlist as an ordinary private and after about 18 months, if he proves suitable, he will be promoted to warrant officer rank as a platoon sergeant-major.

"In this rank he does almost exactly the work of a subaltern and has monetary responsibility—that is to say, he signs pay warrants and that sort of thing. After a few months of this he receives his commission."

REJECT PETITION

County commissioners dismissed a petition for improvement of the Chronister ditch in East Mansfield yesterday following a hearing at which the majority of property owners in the district protested.

The proposal called for laying of tile for a part of the ditch improvement, with the major part of the cost to be assessed against property holders in the area drained by the ditch.

GALION—A daughter, named Barbara Rebecca, was born Wednesday afternoon at the Good Samaritan hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Sherer. Mrs. Sherer is the former Marjorie Dye.

PLAYING 'GOOD SAMARITAN' COSTS COUNTY $1,000 A YEAR

It costs Richland county nearly $1,000 a year to be a Good Samaritan to weary and hungry travelers who become stranded while passing through the county.

Parents with small children, boys on their way to imaginary jobs, and habitual transients who are stricken with illness while in the county share the special relief fund.

Most of the money is distributed through the Salvation Army which provides food and lodging for the homeless travelers and to physicians for medical treatment for the transients whose travels are halted here by illness.

For travelers with automobiles, the county commissioners frequently issue orders for enough gasoline to get the destitute visitors to another county where they probably renew their request for free gasoline.

"While it may not be a kindness to neighboring counties, it's cheaper for us to buy two or three gallons of gas for the stranded motorists," C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of commissioners, asserted.

"But sometimes they come back for more," he said. "Once we financed the overhauling of an automobile for a Cleveland family headed for Tennessee, and a few days later the same family came back for money to get them home to Cleveland."

On a cold night recently, a young man applied for medical help for his wife and small child who were ill from exposure and malnutrition. The applicant explained that he and his family were hitch-hiking from the Pacific coast to New Jersey and that his wife and child were unable to go on.

Commissioners provided temporary quarters for them in a Mansfield rooming house and employed a doctor to treat the mother and her child.

Requests for help increase during the winter months, Mitchell said, but hardly a week passes throughout the year without a few weary and hungry travelers appealing for help to send them on their way.

GALION—Mrs. Walter Karnes and baby were dismissed from the Good Samaritan hospital Wednesday and taken to their home on South Riblet street.

Charges 1,600 of 8,200 Pike County Votes Fraudulent

PORTSMOUTH— (AP) —Emory Smith, defeated candidate for congress in the sixth district, has asserted in a letter to Secretary of State Earl Griffith that 1,600 of the 8,218 ballots cast in Pike county at the November election were illegal.

Smith, Portsmouth attorney who contested the re-election of James G. Polk of Highland, Democratic incumbent, reiterated charges that the Pike county voting was "most fraudulent and shameful." Smith contended Polk gained the margin of victory in Pike county.

Griffith announced that an examination of ballots failed to disclose any illegal voting. Previously the state supreme court ruled that it was without jurisdiction to consider Smith's election contest suit.

"It is wrong for the public to think your office made an investigation and found nothing wrong," Smith informed Griffith.

Of the 1,600 who allegedly voted illegally, Smith declared that "125 were under 21, 74 voted in more than one precinct, and 300 voted absent who never intended to be out of the county."

Youth Hides Mother's False Teeth, Glasses, Goes to Jail.

NED BRITAIN, Conn.—(AP)—Stanley Andrukiewicz, 18, is serving ten days in jail because he hid his mother's false teeth and eyeglasses

Mrs. Andrukiewicz told Police Court Judge William Hagearty that her son "revenged" himself upon her after she removed a tube of a radio which he persisted in playing too loudly.

The Forest Service estimates that the 630,000,000 acres of United States timber land is probably sufficient to meet the country's needs if properly cared for.
